BOUISSON RESIGNS AFTER FOUR DAYS' RULE

FRENCH CABINET COLLAPSE

DEFEATED BY ONLY TWO VOTES

RADICAL COMBINATION CAUSES CRISIS

Paris, June 4.

The Bouisson Government has resigned after four days in office.

The surprising defeat of the Government by two votes, when the Chamber divided on the Plenary Powers Bill, 264-262, has caused another crisis in France. The defeat of the Bouisson Cabinet occurred within a few hours of the overwhelming vote of confidence on another motion.

The Radical Socialist combination in the Chamber was responsible for the fall of the Government.

France has now had eighteen Governments in less than six years.

The vote on the Plenary Powers Bill, the same measure which caused the defeat of the Flandin Government, was counted amid the greatest tension. Centre and Right parties paid a tribute to Premier Bouisson with a prolonged cheer as the result was made known, while Socialist and Radical Socialist groups cheered the result in wild triumph.

During the brief debate on the measure, M. Bouisson said he had not accepted the premiership because of any ambition on his part, but from a sense of duty, and he had obtained a promise of support from practically all groups except the Socialists. It now appeared that some Radicals had changed their minds, he went on.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

Subsequently the Cabinet's resignation was accepted by M. Lebrun, the President, who immediately commenced consultations with a view to forming another Government.

Political confusion prevailed following the spread of a rumour that the Bouisson Government would be succeeded by a Radical-Socialist combination.

BOUISSON DECLINES

M. Lebrun summoned M. Bouisson following the resignation of the Government and asked him to attempt to form a new Cabinet, but M. Bouisson refused.

He advised M. Lebrun to offer the premiership to M. Jeanneney, President of the Senate, but it is generally believed that M. Laval, the well-known Foreign Minister of successive Governments, will be offered the post.

M. Lebrun suspended consultations at 12.20 a.m. but will resume them this morning.

The Socialists, at a meeting of the Leftist groups, proposed the formation of a provisional Government to combat speculation and to prepare for the dissolution of the Chamber. The Radicals approved the proposal.

EARLY POPULARITY

A little while ago the Bouisson Government was popular with the Chamber. The Ministry received an overwhelming vote of confidence by 390 to 129 and when M. Bouisson read the ministerial declaration he was greeted with general cheering.

At the first interruption, M. Bouisson snapped "That's enough." In the port manner by which he, as President of the Chamber, has dominated the House for seven years. This retort was so unexpected that the Chamber roared with laughter, members shouting "He's forgotten where he is."

The Premier later delighted the deputies when he replied to another interrupter: "You think because I have descended one story (the rostrum is below the President's chair) that I have come down in life. You are wrong."

The debate was concluded after a violent attack on the part of Communist radicals. After the

WARSHIP FRUSTRATES PIRATES

BEATS OFF JUNK'S ATTACKERS

CICALA'S ADVENTURE

The timely arrival of H.M.S. Cicula at the entrance to Yellow Reach, in the Shan Tuk District off the West River yesterday afternoon, prevented the piracy of a large junk, laden with ammunition and wood which was attacked by a number of Chinese in sampans.

As a result of the intervention of the British gunboat, several arrests were made.

We were informed by the naval authorities this morning that as the Cicula (Lieut. Comdr. E. L. Conder) was entering the Yellow Reach at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, a large junk was seen half foundering and being attacked and looted by a number of Chinese from five sampans.

LEWIS GUNFIRE

Immediately the gunboat came into view, the junk signalled for help. Lewis gunfire was trained on the attackers from the ship and rifle fire from a boat which had been lowered.

The junk drifted on and grounded at the entrance to Korr Channel where one of the warship's officers were placed in charge, while the District Magistrate and Village Guard at Yungchi, who were informed, returned to the scene of the piracy on board the Cicula and a round-up of the suspects was made, which resulted in several arrests.

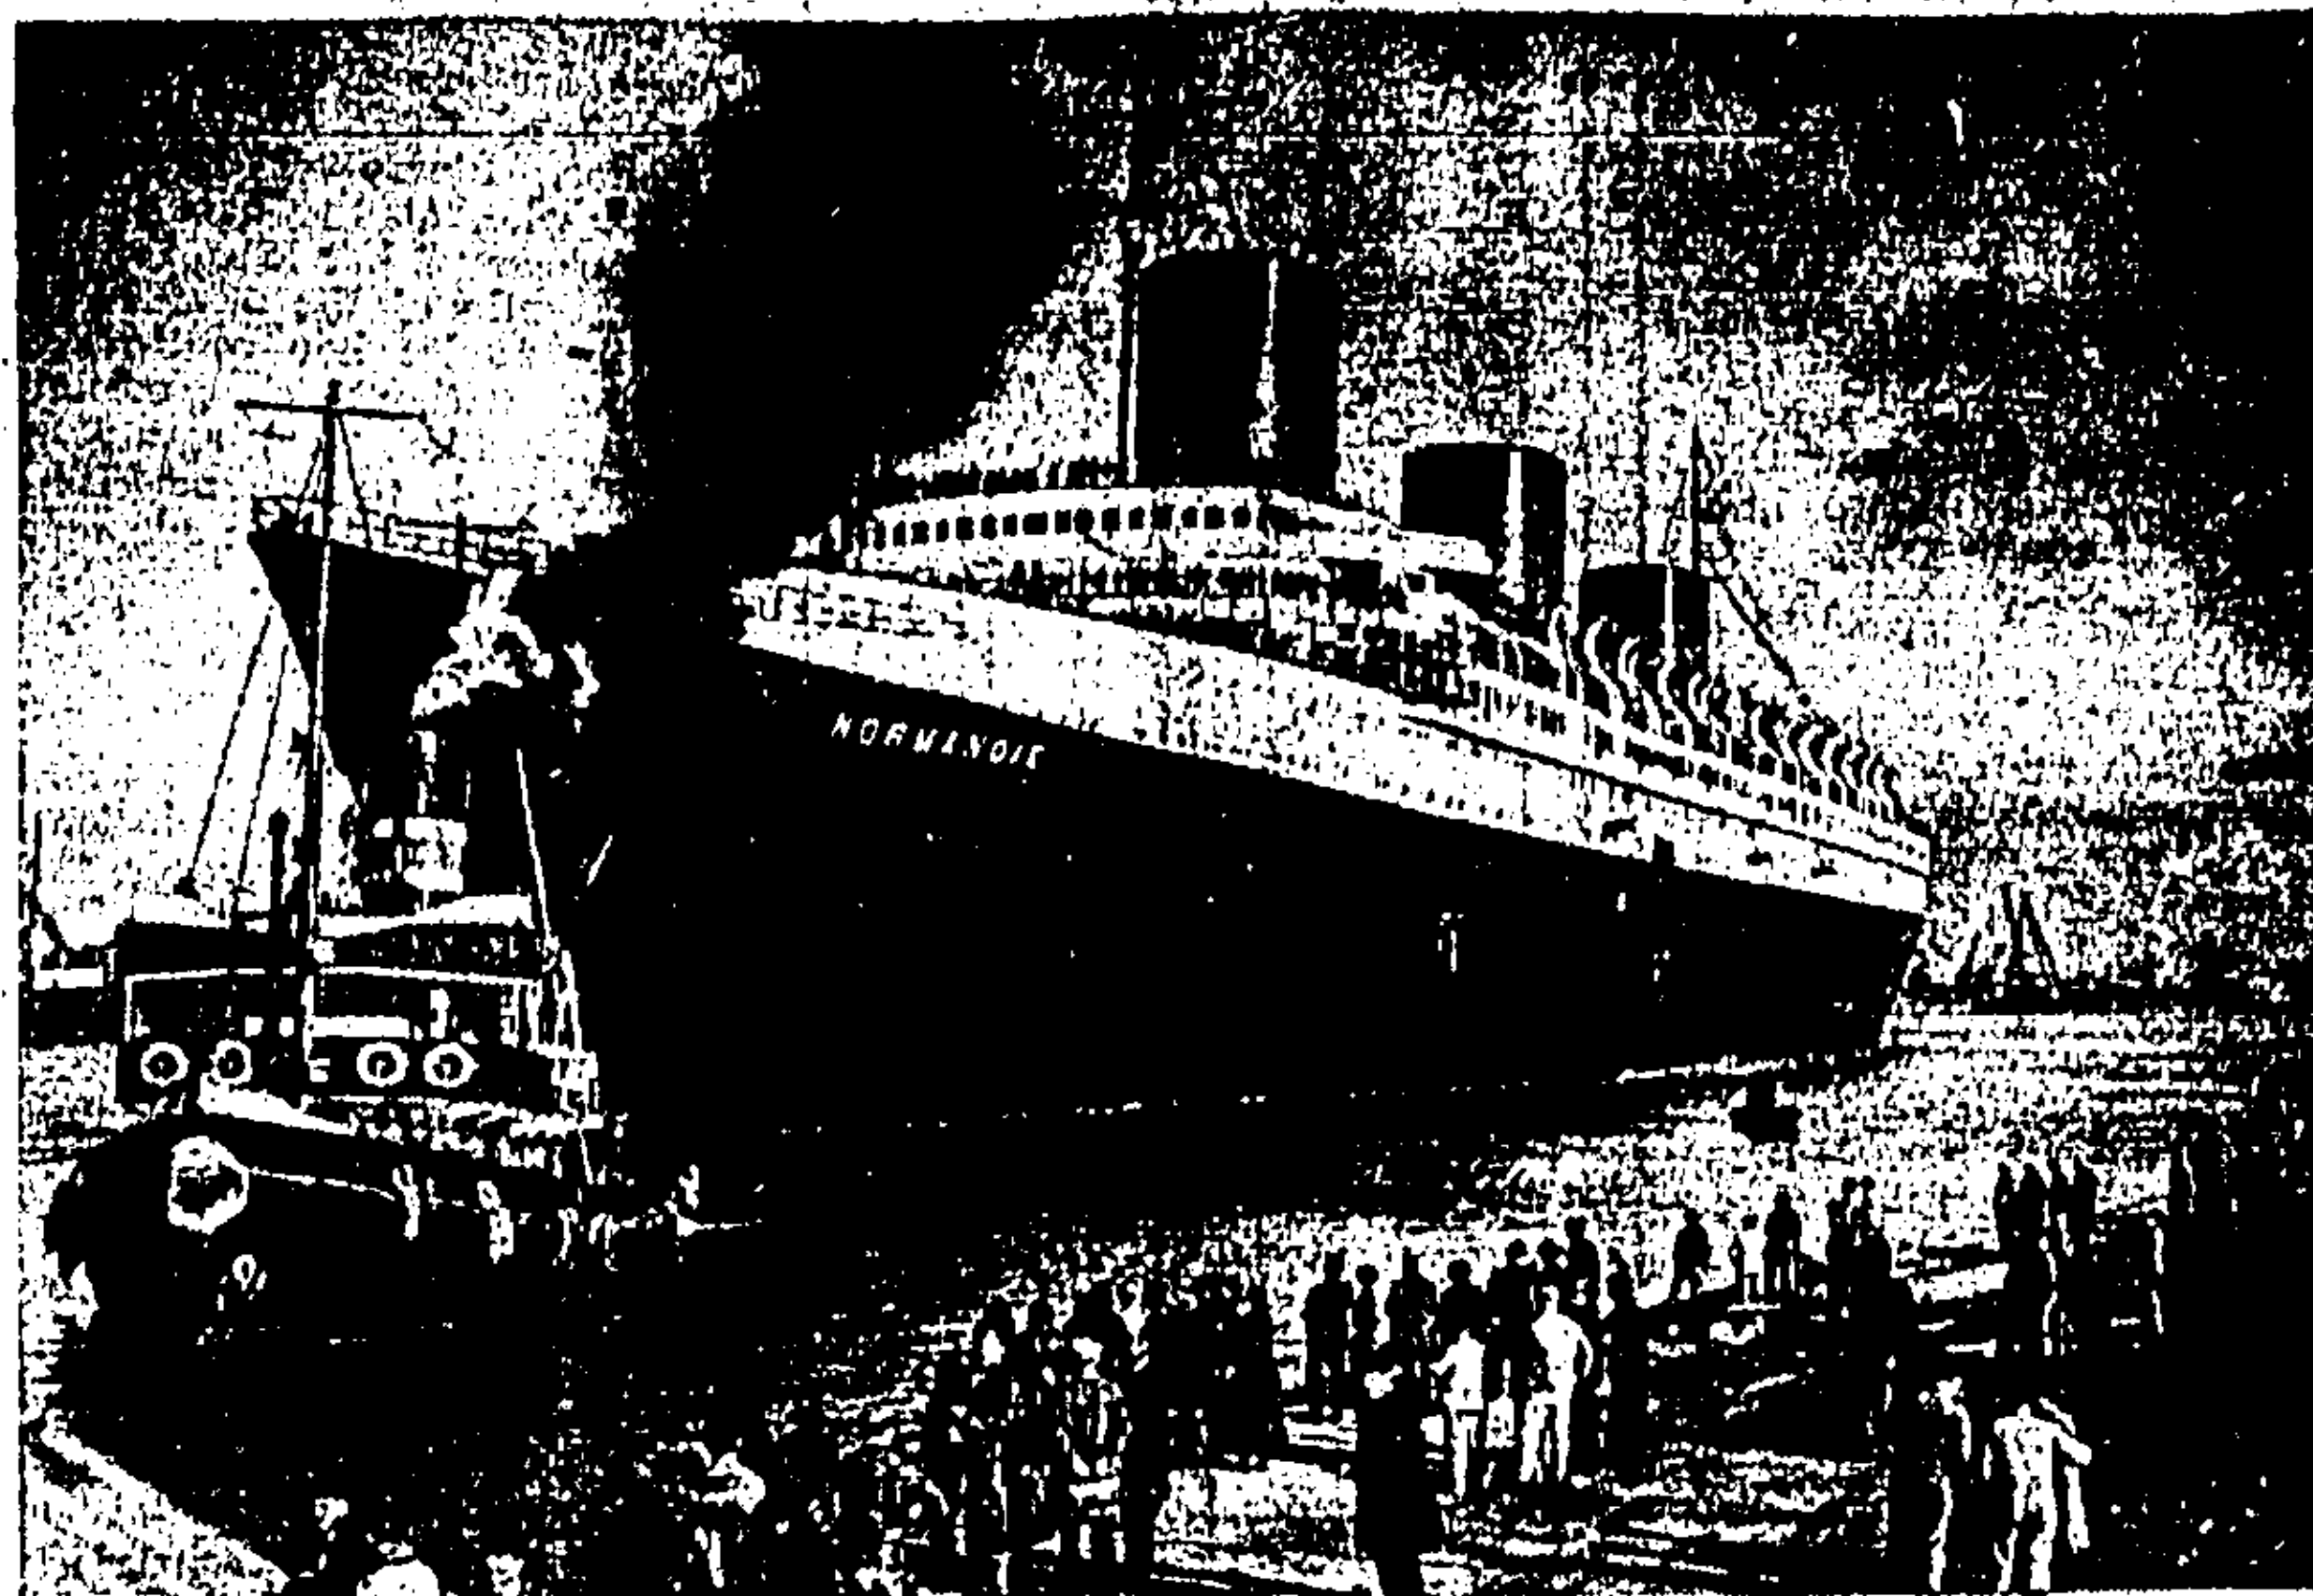

The men were put in charge and the Cicula proceeded to Kongsmoon to notify the Chinese authorities.

The session was suspended in order to allow the Finance Commission to report on the Government's Plenary Powers Bill. Contrary to expectation, the Finance Commission approved the Bill by the narrow margin of only one vote.

LAVAL SELECTED

It is learned now that M. Lebrun intends to insist that M. Pierre Laval accept the Premier's post and form a ministry at once, today, meeting Parliament on Thursday.—Reuters.

The United Press adds that M. Laval has been summoned to the Presidential Palace to be requested to form a Government.

German Navy Strength To Be Settled

OBJECT OF TALKS IN LONDON

BRITAIN'S FEARS

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, June 4.
 Sir John Simon, the Foreign Minister, formally opened the Anglo-German naval talks at the Foreign Office this morning. The Foreign Minister, the formalities concluded, withdrew, and left the discussion to the experts of both sides.

The British Government is represented at the conference by Mr. Robert Craigie, Counsellor in the Foreign Office, Vice-Admiral Little, and Captain Danckwerts. The German Government is represented by Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, Admiral Schuster, and Captain Kiedel von Wassner.

It is understood that Herr von Ribbentrop will outline the reasons for Germany's demand for a fleet thirty-five per cent. of the total British tonnage.

Great Britain will ask questions with regard to Germany's building programme, armament and personnel.

The vital issue will be reached when the delegates discuss the problem of obsolete ships, as Germany's claim to 35 per cent. of Britain's tonnage would give her a marked superiority over the British fleet in home waters because the German warships would be modern while the British Navy, to a large extent, would be obsolete or dispersed in other waters attending to their duties upon the Empire's seaways.

Naval experts are discussing the possibility of Britain utilising the "escalator clause" of the London Treaty, which allows her to build new tonnage if she is threatened by competitive naval armaments, despite the limitations of the treaty.—Reuters Special.

GOVERNOR TO BE REMOVED

Nanking, June 5.
 Following a change made in the mayoralship of Tientsin and the administrative status of the city, it is reliably learned that General Yu Hsueh-chung, Governor of Hopei Province, will soon be transferred to another important post, leaving the Hopei governorship to be filled by another person. By the change in a number of high posts in the Administration in North China, normal relations are expected to be restored with Japan.—Central News.

TOLL OF QUAKE RISING

DEATH LIST NOW OVER 56,000

SPLENDID RESCUES

(Special to "Telegraph")

Quetta, June 4.
 The death-roll in the earthquake for Quetta and adjacent districts is now estimated at the appalling total of 56,000, according to official circles here.

Within two hours of the collapse of the city, the military had rescued from the ruins over 10,000 people alive.

High tribute is paid in all quarters to the magnificent work of the British, particularly women, who, disregarding their own safety, assumed the role of nurses.

Seven thousand survivors in Quetta are now housed in tents on the Racecourse. Fortunately, food and water supplies are adequate.—Reuters Special.

FURTHER SHOCKS POSSIBLE

London, June 4.
 An India Office communication states that although there may be some chance of further shocks in Quetta, this may not cause undue alarm, as all precautions have been taken to minimise the danger to survivors. These, both civil and military, are being accommodated in the open.

All British survivors are devoting themselves completely to relief work and their efforts are reinforced by a constant stream of assistance from outside. The greater part of the Quetta cantonment was either intact or only slightly damaged, and this applies to the Staff College, both military hospitals and the barracks of British and Indian troops and their families.

The injured under treatment in the military hospital are:—British, 79 men; 73 women; and three children; and Indian, 3,250.—British Wireless.

New York, June 4.
 Stockholders in the Paramount Film Company have voted to increase the Company's authorised capital stock to $41,000,000, comprising 300,000 first preferred shares at the par value of $100 each, 650,000 second preferred shares at the par value of $10, and 4,500,000 common shares at the par value of one dollar.—Reuters Special.

Forty Hour Work Week Discussion

EMPLOYERS REFRAIN FROM DEBATING

NO QUORUM OBTAINABLE

(Special to "Telegraph")

Geneva, June 4.
 The employers' group at the International Labour Conference has recommended to its members that they should abstain from discussion and voting on the question of a forty-hour week.

If this attitude is maintained, the Conference will be unable to take any effective decision, as a quorum will not be obtainable.

However, it is understood that the American and Italian employers will disregard the recommendation and will participate in the debate.—Reuters Special.

INDIA BILL'S PROGRESS

SIR SAMUEL HOARE SPEAKS

London, June 4.
 A further stage in the Parliamentary passage of the Government of India Bill was reached today, when in the House of Commons, the Secretary for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, moved its third reading, and congratulated the House on discussing, without the quillotine or closure, every feature of an incredibly intricate Bill of 400 pages.

He said a significant fact which emerged from the long debates was that the main structure of the Joint Select Committee report remained intact. Its three great principles—an All-India Federation, provincial autonomy and responsibility with safeguard—had not been shaken or damaged. No new principle had been introduced into the Bill.

"I defend this Bill," said Sir Samuel, "not so much because no one can produce an alternative scheme, but because I believe it to be good in itself. I believe that it is founded upon a majestic conception, that should inspire all of us who believe in the traditional policy of the British Commonwealth of nations."

It might now be hoped that the Bill would pass in the comparatively near future, and that when it was placed on the Statute Book there would be no protracted delay in bringing it into operation. He appealed to critics, both in Britain and India, when once the Bill had become law, to join in a common effort to make the new Constitution succeed.—British Wireless.

AMERICA MEETS EMERGENCY

RESTORATION OF N.R.A. RULE

BROADER POWERS FOR ADMINISTRATION

Washington, June 4.

President Roosevelt and his Cabinet have agreed to submit an emergency legislative programme to Congress, planning the restoration of the N.R.A., outlawed by the Supreme Court, on a restricted basis, and possibly only affecting minimum wages, maximum hours and fair trade practices.

This decision was reached after an hour-and-a-half Cabinet session.

It is expected that President Roosevelt will propose action forthwith and will announce full details of his plans at a press conference to be held to-night.

It is indicated that the present emergency measures will not be final or permanent, but the President may possibly seek to broaden his constitutional powers for the support of the New Deal.

TIGHTER CONTROL OF BANKS

DR. KUNG PLANS REFORMS

CORRUPTION DECRIED

Shanghai, June 5.
 Dr. H. H. Kung, the Finance Minister, convened another important conference with local native and foreign bank leaders yesterday afternoon.

It was announced that the meeting had discussed the local financial position which had been aggravated by the closing of two more Chinese banks.

Interviewed, Dr. Kung stated that the Government had decided to plan reorganisation and readjustment of financial institutions with a view to maintaining their greater stability.

Assistance will be rendered only to those banks which refrain from speculating and participating in other risky operations, while those found guilty of misappropriation, will be forced to close their doors.—Reuters.

RUN ON SAVINGS SOCIETY

Shanghai, June 4.
 At three o'clock this afternoon a run on the International Savings Society commenced.

There were approximately 300 depositors in orderly lines and under police supervision withdrawing their money until 3.30 p.m.

Mr. M. Speelman, the Head of the Society, told the United Press that there were ample funds to meet the demands and that he planned to remain open to-night if the run continues.—United Press.

JUBILEE GIFT TO KING

FROM IRISH FREE STATE SUBJECTS

London, June 4.
 An Irish silver dish, purchased by 36,000 persons in the Irish Free State, was presented to-day to King George as a Jubilee gift. His Majesty, in expressing sincere thanks for the gift, voiced his wish that the unused balance of £3,800 which had been subscribed, should be devoted to the Free State's Nursing Centres.—Reuters Special.

On the basis of the Bill passed by the Senate continuing the N.R.A. for nine months, before the Supreme Court invalidating decision was given, President Roosevelt and Congressional leaders have agreed on a programme for establishing a modified N.R.A.

The Congressional leaders, on emerging from the White House conference, said the programme would require very little change in the Bill. The programme, details of which will be disclosed at a press conference this evening, excluded inter-State commerce, which the Supreme Court said Congress could not regulate.

Some of the conferees said the programme contemplated legislation designed to keep the N.R.A. organisation intact until April 1, 1936, in order that something more effective might be worked out in the meantime.

NO CODE REVIVAL

It is understood that no attempt will be made to revive the Code structure, immediately, but all Government contracts will have provisions fixing minimum wages and maximum hours. Amendment of the Constitution was not discussed at the conference.

President Roosevelt announced at a press conference that the establishment of an N.R.A. administrative force after June 16 will be proposed to the House of Representatives as a substitute for the Senate resolution continuing the N.R.A. until April 1 next. The President emphasised that no false hopes should be entertained that the Government would undertake in any way to legalise the Code or to seek their enforcement through Federal authority.

Legislative authority will be sought immediately to revive the Federal Co-ordination of Transportation Authority, the Electric Home and Farm Authority, the Petroleum Administrative Board and the Central Statistical Board, all of which were outlawed by the N.R.A. decision.

WAGNER BILL ENDORSED

While admitting that seven N.R.A. Labour Boards must be dropped, the President has asked for a supplementary appropriation of $600,000 for the Labour Department to enable it to carry on its mediation activities.

The President added significantly that the Wagner Labour Bill, if established, would create new tribunals, which would cover the functions of the other Boards. This is generally regarded as Administration endorsement of the Wagner Bill. The President said he expected the Petroleum Administrative Board to be legalised by some general oil legislation.—Reuters.

"FUNERAL" OF BAYERN

GERMAN BATTLESHIP REFLOATED GREAT FEAT OF SALVAGE

Another great salvage feat was successfully concluded when the ex-German battleship Bayern, one of the two most powerful ships which were scuttled with the rest of the surrendered fleet in June of 1919, was brought safely into the lock at Rosyth Dockyard after being towed 'upside-down' from Scapa Flow.

As the salvaged battleship yielded slowly to the persuasion of the tugs on the last few miles up the Forth to Rosyth Dockyard, she was the central figure of an impressive spectacle.

Seen from the Forth Bridge, it was indeed a remarkable sight. Shortly before 11 a.m. the fog which enveloped the river lifted slightly, and revealed two indistinct shapes in the distance.

Fully five minutes elapsed before the Bayern and her convoy of tugs could be discerned from the island of Inchcolm. Gradually they moved forward, and as they neared the bridge the sun appeared in final salute.

It was then that the great battleship, in spite of her inverted position, recaptured some of her old splendour.

The scene was reminiscent of a Royal procession. A large Dutch tug, the Zwarts Zee, led the procession, and alongside the glistening, deep-rusted hull two smaller tugs, also with blue-banded funnels, were in attendance. The salvage ship of Metal Industries (Ltd.), the Metinda, was another attendant.

A couple of aeroplanes swooped from the azure sky and dipped in salute. A small pleasure steamer, two motor boats, and a number of rowing boats moved up and down the route.

When the Forth Bridge was reached—about noon—the aeroplanes departed, and the Bayern passed under and entered her last mile to the accompaniment of the screaming of circling seagulls.

A large crowd had gathered at the Metal Industries' lock at Rosyth Dockyard, where the last stage of the difficult journey was successfully accomplished.

When the leading tug gave up her rope, and was replaced by a tiny pilot, the Bayern remained almost stationary for 20 minutes. Patient and skilful manoeuvring ultimately told, however, and stubbornly the huge hull entered the lock.

Amongst those who watched operations with much interest were the Countess of Elgin and her family; Dr. J. D. Pollock, chairman of Metal Industries (Ltd.); Mr. R. W. McCrone, managing director; Mr. Wilkinson, manager at Rosyth; and Captain Robertson, R.N., H.M.S. Greenwich, Rosyth Dockyard.

Mr. T. McKenzie, salvage manager of Metal Industries (Ltd.), was on board the Bayern.

SAFE VOYAGE

A representative of Metal Industries (Ltd.) stated that the work had been completed with every satisfaction, and the voyage, while demanding great care and patience, had been uneventful.

The Bayern will remain in the lock to-day, and will later be towed to the dry dock, where, for two or three weeks, divers will be engaged in placing blocks under her to distribute her weight evenly over the dock floor before the water is pumped out and the Bayern left ready for the work of breaking her up.

The breaking-up work is expected to start within a month and will employ about 70 men.

ed to start within a month and will employ about 70 men.

A representative of The Scotsman, who had boarded the derelict off Inchcolm, writes:—I found plenty of room to stretch my legs during the next few hours. The ship's bottom was very flat, and as she is the heaviest of all the ships that have been towed to Rosyth—her beam is just under 100 feet—there was quite a lot of space on board.

In one deckhouse was housed the air-compressing plant to keep her afloat, the ship being divided into eleven air-tight compartments, from seven of which there jutted out the airlocks, small compared with the 100-foot high airlocks that were in her when she was being salvaged from the sea bed. In another deckhouse were the quarters where her crew were housed during the passage south, when there were fifteen people on board, including Mr. T. McKenzie, manager of Metal Industries at Lyness, and formerly manager there for Cox & Danks.

CHARACTERISTIC SOUND

Walking about the ship one detected the characteristic sound that comes from these upturned derelicts—a faint hiss. It was quite easy to trace individual sources of the hiss to where minute escapes of air were coming from between the plates, and in one or two places pools of water bubbled as though the water were boiling.

LIVED TOO LONG

CENTENARIANS ARE MOSTLY POOR

Paris, May 27.

One hundred years is too old to live economically.

A survey of the 66 known centenarians of France shows that two-thirds of them are extremely poor. Two of them are in old peoples' homes, the poorest, an Algerian named Sidel, who is 108, lives in a miserable hut in the Parisian Zone—the squatters' belt about Paris—and most of the others are dependent upon the bounty of relatives.

There are some who still have resources of their own, however. Mme. Pierre of Beaune-la-Rolande, who, at the age of 100, has just renewed her lease for nine years, in spite of the offer of her proprietor to let her continue in possession without charge until her death. She was afraid he might die first, though he is a mere 80 years, and that his heirs would be less generous.

Fifty-two of France's centenarians live in the country and only fourteen in cities.

If centenarians retain little in the way of this world's goods, they frequently gain its honours. Rare is the centenarian who does not belong to the Legion of Honour. If that decoration can be gained in no other way, one has only to pass the hundred mark, for a grateful government to discover some service worthy of commemoration that has been performed by living one hundred years. If no notable achievement during the Franco-Prussian war can be discovered, for which two centenarians, a man and a woman, were recently honoured—the red ribbon is awarded for being the oldest school teacher in France, or for having, during three-quarters of a century, faithfully delivered letters to one's neighbours. Both of these distinctions have recently been considered sufficient reason for awarding the distinction of the rank of Knight of the Legion of Honour.

But there is a kernel of bitterness to the honour. The man or woman who is made a Knight for having lived 100 years can hardly expect, after a wait of the usual number of years, to win the dignity of Officer—except, perhaps, posthumously.—United Press.

keels, the ship's bottom had been scraped free from barnacles. Her three propellers and double rudders were still in place, and walking along the keel at the stern one could see the slight buckling caused when her bow came up during the salvage operations, leaving the weight on the stern.

Seven capital ships of the former German High Sea Fleet have now been brought from Orkney to Rosyth to be broken up by Metal Industries (Ltd.), and of these, six, including the Bayern, came upside down, the only exception being the great battlecruiser Hindenburg, which was refloated on an even keel.

For eight years the firm of Cox & Danks conducted the salvage operations. Then Metal Industries took over the whole concern and began work with one of the biggest undertakings of all. It was a big undertaking not only because the Bayern is a big ship—her tonnage of about 28,000 is practically equal to that of the Hindenburg—but because the Bayern lay in deeper water than the other ships which had been raised. Last September, however, Metal Industries succeeded in raising her from a depth of 20 fathoms, and thereby won their spurs in salvage. It only remained to shepherd her to the dry dock at Rosyth, there to be broken up, and then to pass on to be remelted, piece by piece, and converted into razor blades or whatever useful articles it is usual to make out of useless old ships.

CHANGING VOGUE IN MEDICINE

"STYLISH" REMEDIES RUN TO DEATH

PROFESSION WORSE THAN THE PUBLIC

By JOHN MACLAREN

Doctors differ. That is notorious. But they are seldom frank with the public about their differences.

So I was surprised to meet a medical man who was entirely outspoken about the contradictions and inconsistencies of his professional brethren. He was an ex-naval surgeon, and the Navy is said to be the Silent Service. But there was nothing of tight-tipped reticence about this gentleman.

He expatiated upon medical fads with positive gusto, his manner (like his brick-red complexion) suggesting the quarter-deck rather than the consulting room.

"That's how the profession makes a fool of itself," he exclaimed, waving his cigar. "Science discovers some new method or some new piece of knowledge in physics or bio-chemistry. It has a certain real value within limits but soon medical men are falling over each other to proclaim it as a sovereign remedy for dozens of maladies.

"Take the ultra-violet rays vogue of a few years ago," he went on. "Artificial sunshine was prescribed as the great tonic and infallible specific for nearly everything. Then the General Medical Council issued a report, stating that so far as the treatment of local conditions was concerned you might just as well use a poultice, and as for the tonic value, a course of cod liver oil would be equally effective."

The doctor's eyes twinkled, and I ventured to remark that the craze now seemed to be for sun-bathing in the open air.

"Yes, and have you noticed," he demanded, "that all the medical whippersnaws now warn people of the dire dangers of over-exposure—from biliousness to apoplexy—though the same authorities a few years ago were preaching the unlimited benefits of the sun-cure and telling us to get as much of it as ever we could. The old story—running a novel remedy to death—and the profession are worse than the public."

THE ROUGHAGE FADDISTS

A pensive look came into the doctor's eye and he gazed for a moment at the glowing tip of his cigar.

"Perhaps you remember before the war the fashionable treatment for digestive troubles was Bulgarian sour milk. It was proclaimed to work wonders. You never hear of it now. The craze to-day is for pasteurised milk, and even there half the profession is on one side and half on the other, and the most eminent living surgeon has declared that the only safe method is to boil every drop of milk that comes into your house."

"What about," I inquired, "the campaign of the famous physician who tells the nation that the whole gospel of health is to be found in wholesome bread, uncooked green vegetables and raw fruit?"

"Bee in his bonnet!" was the emphatic reply. "This doctrine of rough feeding sets people consuming 'the husks that the swine did eat.' And what happens? Those with delicate digestions get worse disorders than ever and seek some other medical adviser, who tells them that by eating bulky, coarse food they are simply poisoning themselves. The funny thing is," he added, "that the roughage theorists are usually the very people who condemn our good, old Scotch breakfast porridge and say it causes rickets and decay of the teeth.

CRANKS OF VARIOUS SORTS

"Then there are the no-breakfast fanatics, and the experts who tell you that to be healthy you should have only one meal a day—like your dog. They can all claim some medical sponsor or other. Now some crazy dietician in America—a doctor, too—has laid down the law that you must not eat protein and carbohydrates at the same time. You must eat your egg at one meal but your toast at the next; your meat at dinner but your potato at supper. Can you beat it for perverse nonsense?"

I mentioned that I had met one fashionable London consultant who held not only white bread to be a poison but white sugar also, and banned salt utterly from the table.

"Quite believe it Harley Street has as many cranks as any frenk back-to-nature colony," commented my interlocutor. "My profession cannot agree on even the simplest advice about daily living. Take exercise. One general practitioner tells his middle-aged, sedentary patient to take up golf. Another will warn him that, after sitting at a desk all the week, to indulge in strenuous exercise like golf at the week-end will do him more harm than good."

"Then there is the doctor who gives his patient a bottle whether he needs it or not. And the other type who on the slightest provocation sends him to a specialist, who will pocket three guineas for telling him there is really nothing the matter. However, since 75 per cent. of patients simply want to have their fears set at rest, they are getting value for their money."

"So it's pretty much a matter of faith healing in both cases?" I suggested.

The doctor actually winked. "Exactly," he nodded. "And we might do worse, you know. Heaven help us all!"

As his mother, Mrs. Louard Wells, was using the second wife of Carveth Wells, explorer, for $50,000 for alienation of her husband's affections, John Carveth Wells (above), son of the explorer, was selling matches in London streets to make a living for his wife, his baby and himself. The suit, brought in Bridgeport, Connecticut, was decided in favour of the elder Wells' first wife. She was awarded $5,000. Young Wells, shown in the above picture at his trade, is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of England.

"MENAGERIE" IN HOME

PEER'S DAUGHTER RESTRAINED

NEIGHBOURS KEPT AWAKE

An application on behalf of neighbours of the Hon. Mrs. Alice McLaren Morrison, of Kennal Warren, Chislehurst, Kent, a daughter of the late Lord Pirbright, was made in the Chancery Division, London, by Mr. H. B. Vaisey, K.C., to restrain an alleged nuisance concerning a number of monkeys, cats, dogs, and birds kept by Mrs. Morrison.

The application was heard by Mr. Justice Bennett, who granted an injunction, with costs, in terms of the motion.

Mr. Vaisey said he had a motion to restrain the defendant from keeping or suffering to be kept a number of dogs, birds—

Mr. Justice Bennett—Why do you want to restrain birds?

Mr. Vaisey—If you have ever lived next to a cockatoo (laughter).

Mr. Justice Bennett—I was thinking of thrushes and nightingales, which you have to listen to whether you like it or not.

Mr. Vaisey said the action was to restrain the defendant from causing, by keeping the animals, any nuisance to the complainants. The complainant was Mr. Harold Molins, the owner of Mulbarton Court, Chislehurst. Some mitigation of the nuisance had been made since the motion was originally before them on April 30 and stood over until to-day for the removal of certain large dogs, which had been removed from the premises.

LARGE DOGS REMOVED

The removal of the large dogs had not got rid of the nuisance, for there was a number of small dogs which had been causing a considerable nuisance.

Mr. Justice Bennett—Is the

Despite the apparently strained relations existing between Germany and other European countries, England and the Reich have recommended the exchange of officers for training at the two military schools which are exponents of both types of warfare. For the first time in many years, a German officer, Lieut. von Wick, has become attached to a regiment at Aldershot for a military course. Here Lieut. von Wick is pictured walking into the officer's mess of the 2nd Battalion, Grenadier Guards.

Mr. Vaisey—The first complaint is of the noise, and the second is of the offensive smell.

He added that they were residential houses of good character. His Lordship would see that the defendant had chosen to treat her house as a menagerie on a large scale and one which, he was entitled to say by reason of previous Police Court proceedings, was very ill-conducted as such.

Mr. Vaisey, submitting the affidavit of Mr. Molins, also produced photographs of the house, with certain rooms in the house which he said were "stocked with cages."

In reply to Mr. Justice Bennett, he said there were about 100 dogs. He added that the defendant had brought to her house more dogs, a goat, a guinea pig, mice, cats, and dogs, which kept Mr. Molins awake at night.

Mr. Wynn Parry said some of the dogs had been taken away and had not been brought back.

"CENSUS" OF ANIMALS

Mr. Vaisey went on to say that when an inspector visited the premises he found 70 adult dogs, 11 puppies, 27 cats, 16 monkeys, 100 birds, one rat, and one goat.

"The rat is denied by the defendant, and we are prepared to admit that," said Mr. Vaisey.

Mr. Wynn Parry read an affidavit sworn by Mrs. Morrison which stated that Mrs. Morrison was one of the first to import Japanese spaniels into this country. She never kept animals for profit, but only for a hobby. She took Kennal Warren in order to reduce expense of keeping two premises as she had been used to do.

Mr. Justice Bennett—The only point is whether there is a noise and smell. You cannot keep 60 dogs in a place like this without any noise.

63 DOGS INSIDE

Mr. Parry said his client said there was no possible cause for complaint on the score of cleanliness.

The east end of London is the "other side of the tracks" to the swanky west-enders, yet it was the east-end that was first to be decorated in preparation for the King's silver jubilee. Here is Houndsditch, one of the main thoroughfares of the east end, bedecked in flags of the empire.

ROTARY PRINCIPLES

SHOULD BE USED TO JOIN CHINA TOGETHER

Kindly criticism pointed at the Hongkong Rotary Club by Mr. H. E. Harris of California, at the weekly meeting yesterday, was made in urging Rotarians to apply the ethics of their own institution in bringing together the various parts of China in mutual integrity and understanding.

The speaker, who is one of the most prominent figures in Rotary to-day, also expressed the hope that a Rotary District would be formed embracing Canton and the Philippines.

Mr. M. K. Lo, the President, congratulated the local residents who received honours in the King's Birthday list and mentioned Sir Atholl MacGregor and the Hon. Mr. S. W. T'so, C.B.E., as two members of the Club. A letter of congratulation would be sent to Sir Atholl and Lady MacGregor.

The Hon. Mr. T'so who was present, said he felt that he shared the honour with his friends of the Rotary Club.

Sympathy was expressed for Mr. M. F. Key, secretary of the Club, who was stated to be in hospital following a slight accident.

Mr. Harris said he was glad to be in Hongkong. Only the night before he had been gazing at some magazines and recalled the boyish stories of Rudyard Kipling set in India where a terrible tragedy had just occurred.

Rudyard Kipling's heart must be heavy at news of this catastrophe.

A short time ago he, the speaker, had been one of five hundred people crammed aboard a small vessel on a month's cruise and he had been much impressed by the manner in which so many different nationalities, sleeping and eating at various times and many having different governments and religions, had settled themselves down during the voyage. Some had organised events and others had isolated themselves, but all had found at the end of the month that the fellow passengers they had disliked at the beginning were now people they hated to leave at the end of a trip which had proved to be quite enjoyable.

World Getting Smaller

It was a truism to state in a gathering where so many men had had more experience of internationalism than he had, but this was indeed a small world. When his father had wanted to get a copy from Europe he had had to wait for something like a year, but now sitting in his home he could telephone London in five minutes. That morning in Canton he had eaten Sunkist oranges from his home town of Whittier.

To-day we were so jammed in by modern communications that we not only rubbed elbows but trod on each other's toes. Yet, however inconvenient this world might be he knew of no way of getting out of it. What sort of international relations were we going to develop to make this a happier place?

Different nations had set about the process in different ways. Some had tried to live entirely apart from others. Japan did this; and there was the Great Wall of China; America with her tariff walls and her refusal to join the League of Nations; but he believed that the time had come when any nation which tried to isolate itself was doomed to failure.

Some nations had set themselves to organise and direct other people, imposing on them their culture, civilisation and form of government.

"Shall I say that Japan is doing that to-day," continued the speaker, "that Japan, which has assimilated so much from the Occident, is forcing it on Formosa, Korea, Manchuria and China? But before we throw stones at Japan let us look further: I seem to remember the 4th. of July orations in America painting the United States as the culmination of all that is best in government and morals."

Importance of Orient

There were two fundamental principles of Rotary which could be applied to this subject, viz., friendliness and fairplay; and it would be the privilege of those Rotary Clubs on the Pacific Coast to take a place of importance in shaping the history of the Orient, for he was convinced that here would take place the greatest developments in the growth of this new age. Speaking frankly he would say that he was a little disappointed with Rotary in the Orient and wished that they could go on to do greater things to develop a better spirit among the peoples. China presented immeasurable opportunities for promoting unity and integrity among the various parts of the country. Rotarians had accepted the principles and ethics of business and social relations and they should try and bring something of this feeling into China to-day. For this reason he hoped that they would bring about a Rotary District embracing Canton and the Philippine Islands. In making this criticism he trusted they would make allowance for his superficial knowledge of the countries in which he had travelled.

Speaker from Manila

Rotarian Romulo, of the Manila Rotary Club, spoke at the invitation of the President, and extended a hearty invitation to local members to visit them. The Philippine Islands, he said, were going through a transitional period in assuming their new Constitution, but through the trials which he had no doubt awaited them, they would

QUESTION ABOUT SULTAN'S GIFT

London, June 4.
 Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, replying to Commander A. Marsden, (C), (North Battersen), stated that the Government had gratefully accepted the Sultan of Johore's gift of £500,000, and the methods of utilising it were under consideration.

Commander Marsden requested an assurance that work be definitely carried out for the purpose of accelerating the completion of the Singapore Base.

Mr. MacDonald said that the matter was under consideration, but assured him that the purpose specified by the Sultan of Johore would be the purpose on which the money would be spent.

Mr. James Maxton, (Lab.), (Bridgeton), inquired the difference between the Sultan of Johore's gift, which was accepted and that of a private person (Lady Houston) for the defence of London which the Government refused.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald replied that there was all the difference in the world.—Reuter.

STABILISATION

As the Bouisson Government appeared favourably disposed to international consultation on currency stabilisation, there were hopes that the advent of this Administration might lead to the early convening of a world conference on the subject. That hope, however, has lessened now that the Government has been compelled to resign. To the layman, it is a somewhat amazing fact that whilst there is general agreement as to the desirability of some definite step being taken in an endeavour to work out a stabilisation agreement, no one country will take upon itself the responsibility of starting the ball rolling. Almost every utterance by world statesmen, bankers and economists which one encounters nowadays includes some reference to the harmful effects on trade of fluctuating currencies, and there is apparent a unanimity of viewpoint that an agreement on international stabilisation, coupled with the removal of other barriers to commerce, would have widespread beneficial consequences. Yet when the call for action is sounded, no Government responds with a willingness to make the first move. Quite recently, Mr. Morgenthau, the United States Secretary of the Treasury, intimated in a broadcast on America's monetary policy, that the nations of the world should know that when they are ready to seek exchange stabilisation, Washington would be no obstacle. This was interpreted as a feeler for the purpose of ascertaining world reaction to the idea of a conference on the subject. A few days later, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, frankly admitted the difficulties caused by fluctuating exchanges, but added that a return to the gold standard could only be made possible by a satisfactory settlement among the great nations of the world. This also was interpreted as an indication that Britain would be willing to confer on the subject. But not many days afterwards, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald emphatically refused, on behalf of the British Government, to take the first step in the matter, adding that "we have been trying to get the initiative taken, but up to now we have not been very successful." And so it goes on; all are agreed as to the desirability of calling a conference, but none will make the first forward move. The failure of past con-

NOTES OF THE DAY BRITISH ARMS INQUIRY

The first public meeting of the Royal Commission investigating the British arms industry was held recently. The small attendance probably was not a true gauge of public interest in the questions to be discussed. Certainly if the testimony before this tribunal—the first in British history to weigh the future of the private arms trade—is at all comparable to that which was brought out in the United States by the Senate Munitions Committee, the hearings will not lack public attention. It is easy to exaggerate the part that munitions makers play in bringing on war. But that their operations have helped to prolong wars and to frustrate efforts to establish peace, and that they have often beclouded the outlook for international understanding will be difficult to disprove. The evidence on these points is already well established. The British investigation will surprise no one very much if it adds to this evidence—as the American inquiry has—details and aspects so startling as to make the public demand for reform adamant. Yet it is not in the best interests of peace to imagine that all munitions makers are scoundrels, and that to take their profits away from them will end the possibility of war. The Royal Commission's inquiry aims at ascertaining facts, not arousing emotions.

ABUSE OF PRINCIPLE

In Bronx Special Sessions, says the N.Y. World Telegram, two officials of a non-A. F. of L. organisation, calling itself the United Retail Food Clerks' Union, were given six months' workhouse sentences on charges of coercion and conspiracy involved in what Assistant Attorney-General Bernard Bienstock, of the Anti-Racket Bureau, describes as a racket to "shake down" grocery store owners. This follows recent World-Telegram articles by its staff writer Frederick Woltman revealing the extent to which racketeer organising methods, disclosed in the case of two clothing clerks' unions, threaten other retail trades. The practice of "unionising" employees by putting the screws on their employers is characteristic of most of these rackets. The store owner must "sign" or be picketed. The American Federation of Labour suspended the charters of the two clothing clerks unions, which were A. F. of L. affiliates. Against mushroom groups of "organisers" who have no A. F. of L. connections the speediest protection for retailers and public can come from the Anti-Racket Bureau. Assistant Attorney-General Bienstock should be encouraged to go on and better the score. Organised labour itself is a chief sufferer from racketeers who pervert its principles and its purpose. Besides cleaning its own house, it should support law authorities in stopping the spread of all fake "organising" methods that tend to discredit it.

TO-DAY'S MOTORING HINT

REVERSING

Many novice drivers experience difficulty in reversing the car in a confined space.

The best way of carrying out this operation is to keep the eyes fixed on the off-side of the car only, provided it is known that the opening is sufficiently wide for the car to pass through. The car should be driven as close to the observed side as possible; the other side can be left to itself.

When reversing, and this applies in all cases, it is generally better to control the speed of the car by means of the hand throttle and not by the accelerator pedal. If this is done the right foot can be kept hovering over the brake pedal for instant use.

There is no doubt a factor in the situation, resulting in a disinclination on the part of most countries to saddle themselves with another possible deadlock. Yet it is passing strange that national pride should stand in the way of a square facing up to the realities. In view of the continued world depression, it might reasonably be expected that the boot would be on the other foot—that no nation would allow itself to suffer the reproach of not doing everything possible in an endeavour to straighten out the situation.

THIS FETISH OF PSYCHOLOGY

By AGIS

In the Edinburgh Evening Despatch

HOW many ministers have recently been infected by the craze for psychology? There has been nothing like it in modern times. Once the average minister studied theology; now he studies psychology. Where they used to examine, question, and believe in the Spirit of God, now many ministers investigate and pursue the ways and workings of the spirit of man. Recently I met a minister who showed me a list of books he had got together. There were over fifty, and each was concerned with the study of psychology. He was determined to read them to the bitter end. Already within a fortnight he had preached two sermons directly bearing on the subject, and one wondered how many more his congregations would be deluged with before he was satisfied. No one would seek to question the value and importance of psychological study. For the minister it is specially useful. It is as important and as far-reaching as the new knowledge of evolution was to our forefathers a generation or two ago. But just as evolution proved a serious menace to Christianity then because it was given a place in thought and in faith out of all proportion to its value, so the study of and belief in psychology is threatening the spontaneous faith and belief of this more modern day.

There is a deep and abiding truth in psychology, only we must determine the truth about it and keep it in its proper place. Where it aids the spirit of God or of man it is of value; where it is a substitute for real religious experiences it threatens the very heart and inspiration of Christianity.

For one thing, surely it is a denial of all religious truth and experience to be told that the wave of protest against the evils and injustices of society is merely the expression of a protest due to a parent fixation; that a guilty conscience is a morbid conflict or a fetish for purity, a repression or an inhibition; that to worry about morality or conduct is merely a subconscious complex being given outlet? In other words, it indicates if it does not actually say that all the religious people, the moral reformers, and the seekers after truth are such because of some psychological abnormality. It limits the Spirit of Good if it does not altogether deny His place in conscience, regeneration, and salvation.

Then again, it makes conscious and awkward, hesitating and doubtful many actions, impulses, and urges to which a man was wont to give natural, spontaneous, and happy expression. It leads to over-introspection which may even become morbid. It suspects all feeling or at least makes us consider whether we have not some ulterior or primary motive for the emotion which we might otherwise accept merely as the expression of our joy or sorrow.

I remember some years ago meeting a very young minister on the eve of a call. He was wondering what were his impulses and motives in accepting it. Instead of looking on it as a call of God, he was wondering whether he was refusing to face up to anything or fleeing from some subconscious fear by wanting a change at all? His study of psychology had so worked into his soul that it had stirred up the very doubts that the average man answers spontaneously and happily.

It is probably this morbid side of psychology which is its greatest menace. Where a patient is mentally ill it is of great use. It may help many a minister to overcome his nervousness; it will guide him in treating the neurotic fears, the quarrels, and temptations of the various members of his congregation. But just as it is morbid for a healthy man to probe into all the diseases and cures of medicine until sometimes he convinces himself he is a martyr to them all, so it is dangerous for the normal individual to foster his mind with all the abnormal repressions, complexes, and inhibitions of mankind.

Psychology is for the specialist and those who must be treated. Of course, just as we are all the better for observing the laws of health, and the more we grasp the general laws the more healthy we are likely to be, there are broad psychological principles with which we can make ourselves familiar to our mental and psychic happiness. It is one of the claims of religion that it can give these to mankind. Not only is a too-close study of psychology a lot of mud-stirring, but it may land the incautious or weak-willed or ignorant seeker in the mud.

When one considers the modern craze for psychology one wonders what the end is to be. Certainly the laws of society will not be religious laws, for these will come under question and be subservient to the laws of Nature. And religion is Nature plus the revelation of God in Jesus Christ. It will probably mean that instead of spontaneity of action due to idealism or faith, men will be governed by psychological principles of the text-book, and so man may become a psychological automaton whose every impulse and urge is to be examined before he acts. The Spirit of God will be connoted in terms of instinct, repression, or inhibition. Religion, it will be believed, is an emotional expression of a complex or a fear or a protest.

Thus psychology, which sets out to explain much (and rightly so), may become an end in itself—which is the denial of everything beyond man's reactions to the natural impulses within and around him.

It may be claimed that by seeking to explain the Spirit of God we in no way take away from His reality. But it must be an explanation and not a substitute. Just as many people suppose that evolution is a substitute for creation, so the real danger is that many may fall into the error of supposing that psychological experiences are a beginning and an end in themselves. Thus the religious value of prayer and worship, penitence and forgiveness, service and sacrifice may be seriously threatened and their reality denied beyond the human working of the spirit of man.

It is the claim of religion that it has reality in faith, safeguard in conduct, sublimation and satisfaction in its worship and service, and that the sincere Christian may live a happy, normal, and God-ordained life in Jesus Christ. Above all, we believe in the inspiration and guidance of God through His Holy Spirit. In religion the normal man has all the benefits of psychology without its dangers.

The Very Idea!

IN LIGHTER VEIN

In a town school an infant class reading lesson was in progress. The word "atle" occurred, and the teacher inquired, "What is a stilo?"

Immediately six-year-old Audrey replied, "The way you put your clothes on."

ARMS AND THE BISHOP

The Duke of Wellington was very blunt and hated fussiness of any kind.

When a question arose as to whether the military salute should be given to a certain bishop in Canada, he replied that his soldiers were to pay attention to nothing about a bishop except his sermons.

HIGH GEAR

Traffic Policeman—"Now, miss, what gear were you in at the time of the accident?"

Demure Miss—"Oh, I had on a black beret, brown shoes, and a tweed sports dress."

TIT FOR TAT

That poverty does not necessarily deprive a person of a sense of humour is suggested by a recent incident which occurred in a Glasgow street.

A beggar followed an elderly, gouty, limping gentleman, pleading for assistance.

On his pleas being refused with much irritability, the mendicant said, "Jings, ah wish yer hert wis as tender as yer feet!"

BAGS!

Some characteristic bench witticisms of Lord Darling are preserved by ex-Chief Detective-Inspector Ernest Nicholls in "Crime Within the Square Mile" published by John Long.

"Or wind-bags," gently interposed his lordship. Whereupon the speech came to a speedy end.

REALLY DEAD

Two Cockneys were watching a funeral.

"Whose funeral is it, Bill?"

"Why it's —, the famous actor."

"Good heavens! Is he dead?"

"Well, of course he's dead. Why, do you think he's having a rehearsal?"

MORE HOWLERS

A chameleon is the driver of the Ship of the Desert.

Blancmange is a distemper that troubles cats.

Rhino is a beast of such value that its name is used as a nickname for cash.

"Good morning," an old crony addressed a friend whom he met on the roadside; "are ye all well?"

"Oh, aye, thank ye kindly for springing! We're a' weel, only the wife's deid!"

HE SWORE

Policeman (to pedestrian injured by motor):—"You didn't get his number, but could you swear to the man?"

Pedestrian—"I did. But I don't think he heard me!"

FLOODS IN AMERICA

KILLS A HUNDRED

Mexico City, June 4.

Over a hundred were drowned or killed at San Pedro and Actopan, twenty miles from here, as the result of a cloudburst flooding the Actopan River and causing torrents.

Many victims were trapped in the Actopan Church where they were celebrating a religious festival.—Reuter.

"She's even got me thinking about vacation time."

INDEFINITE PERIOD

(Special to "Telegraph")

Danzig, June 4. An indefinite bank holiday has been declared here to-day.

The purpose of this measure is to check the recent extensive withdrawals from the savings banks, which withdrawals have been designed chiefly for the purchase of foreign currency.

The Danzig Senate has proclaimed that all week days henceforth are to be considered as holidays for all banks, savings institutions, stock markets and foreign exchange markets.

Certain exchange institutions will be permitted to remain open but only for the exchange of foreign currencies into gulden.

The payment of wages and urgent financial transactions will be allowed under regulations which will be published on Thursday, June 6.—United Press.

RESULT OF SPECULATION

Danzig, June 4. The Government, which is composed of Nazis, has ordered the closing of all banks for two days. This action has been taken owing to feverish buying of foreign exchange in consequence of a rumour of further devaluation of the Danzig gulden.—Reuter Special.

LONDON MARKET REPORT

SILVER FALLS BUT STEADIES

The Stock Exchange to-day was steady to firm, but business in practically all sections was restricted.

On the commodity markets, rubber improved on Malayan shipments being smaller than had been anticipated. Cotton prices staged a good rally before the close, owing to rumours that President Roosevelt would make some constructive statement tonight.

Silver prices fell a penny on India and China selling, but later partially recovered. Renewed speculative buying caused a rise in copper.

The Continent started selling French francs fairly heavily before the close, probably owing to nervousness regarding the political situation in France.—Reuter.

BONUS BILL SHELVED

STRATEGICAL MOVE BY SUPPORTERS

Washington, June 4. Congressional supporters of the cash bonus payment to War veterans have decided to abandon their efforts to secure consideration at this session and instead to concentrate upon a campaign with the people.

They will strive to rouse public opinion to a point which will force enactment of the Patman Bill at the next session of Congress.

The contest over the measure would thus fall on the eve of the next presidential election which some bonus supporters consider sound strategy.—Reuter.

LORD CARSON VERY ILL

ADMIRAL MADDEN UNCONSCIOUS

London, June 4. Lord Carson is seriously ill, suffering from bronchial pneumonia. He is 81 years of age.

SPURIOUS COINS

DEFENDANT DISCHARGED BY MAGISTRATE

Dissatisfaction at the way the police handled the exhibits and the way the police interpreter gave evidence was expressed by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, when he discharged Kan Sang, 30, unemployed, who was charged with the possession of 750 counterfeit Hongkong ten cent pieces and 750 Hongkong five cent pieces, and also with importing counterfeit coins into the Colony.

On discharging defendant the Magistrate expressed his dissatisfaction at the way the exhibits had been handled, and said he did not think the coins testified to were the coins which had been kept in the safe. He also criticised the manner in which the interpreter had given his evidence. The Magistrate further stated these cases were becoming very serious, and those who are sent to Supreme Court are going to get very heavy sentences. The main reason why he was discharging defendant was because of the way the exhibits had been handled.

MURDER IN CITY

YOUNG CHINESE APPEARS ON CAPITAL CHARGE

The murder of Chui Wai-hing, 20-year-old waitress of the Kong So Restaurant, who was stabbed outside 38 Upper Lascar Row on April 30, formed the subject of a charge brought against Chau Chung, alias Chau Chang-su, aged 25, unemployed, before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon, when committal proceedings were commenced.

Presenting the case for the Crown, the Assistant Attorney General, Mr. J. A. Fraser, said: The accused is charged with the murder of a girl, Chui Wai-hing, at something like two in the morning of April 30 by stabbing her with a knife outside 38 Upper Lascar Row where she lived, and immediately upon doing so he stabbed himself apparently with the intention of committing suicide.

These facts I shall substantiate roughly in this manner: by the evidence of a man who was in No. 38 ground floor and heard something passed between two persons who must have been the accused and the girl outside the house immediately prior to the stabbing. In the conversation he heard "money" and "knife" mentioned, then he heard a scream for help and then the police whistle.

There is also the evidence of another man who heard the whistle and arrived on the scene in time to see the accused trying to attempt suicide.

Important Letters

Mr. Fraser went on to say the facts would be substantiated principally by certain letters found on the accused person. There were seven letters and in all there was the mention of killing.

The first letter was addressed to one Suk Ming and read, in part: "I have long made up my mind to kill myself. Learning subsequently that she has slandered me I have made up my mind to kill her and then kill myself."

In another letter he mentioned: "I have long made up my mind to kill myself. Ever since I made the acquaintance of Wai Hing I have squandered the money of my father and brother."

Mr. Fraser mentioned the letters were very important and added he believed the accused lived with the girl some time before and they recently separated. This was foreshadowed in the letters which also indicated that he had squandered money on her, and apparently his allowance had been stopped from home and he just made up his mind to put an end to it all.

Mr. C. H. Lamb, land surveyor of the Public Works Department, produced plans of the vicinity.

Doctor's Evidence

Dr. Isaac Newton, medical officer in charge of the Government Civil Hospital, testified that at 3.05 a.m. on April 30, the accused and the girl Chui Wai-hing were admitted to hospital both suffering from stab wounds in the abdomen. An operation was performed on the woman first, as she was considered the more serious case. She died at 2.45 p.m. the same day. At the post mortem examination conducted in the G.H. mortuary, witness found three external wounds. Her general physical condition was good. The cause of death was a stab wound of the liver and intestines with shock and haemorrhage a contributory cause.

Replying to Mr. Fraser, Dr. Newton said, in his opinion, the wounds must have been caused by some instrument similar to the knife produced in Court.

Dr. Newton deposed that accused was operated on next, and had three small wounds, also one vertical wound that penetrated the abdomen. He was discharged from hospital on May 10.

Replying further to Mr. Fraser, witness said he could not say the wounds on the woman were not self-inflicted. If they were not self-inflicted they could have been made easier by a left-handed person if the two persons were standing on the same level. Witness could not draw any definite conclusions as to what hand was used with the accused's wounds.

Further evidence was called, after which the hearing was adjourned to this afternoon at 2.30.

His Worship has also reserved to-morrow and Friday for the hearing.

If she's waiting at the gate, she isn't on the fence about marrying you.

RAIN SPOILS CRICKET FIXTURE AT MANCHESTER

CRAIGENGOWER BOWLERS SAVE PAIRS TIE

DRAW LEVEL AFTER BEING DOWN 10-1 AND THEN 19-9

(By "Sagax")

There were two distinct phases in the Open Pairs lawn bowls championship on the Civil Service C. C. Green yesterday afternoon when J. S. Landolt and A. E. Coates who were outplayed and outgeneralled during the opening stages, brought off a magnificent recovery and were on level terms with their opponents at 21-21 on the eighteenth head, at which point the match was abandoned. The game will be continued this afternoon, starting at 6 p.m.

The standard of bowls fluctuated but it was always high and all four players showed brilliant patches at different stages of the game. The two Dock players early revealed promising form and at the end of the ninth head had a commanding lead, but in the latter parts the Craigenower combination more than held their own and had it been possible for the match to have been concluded yesterday it is more than likely that they would have won.

For the first half of the game Whyte and Landolt shared the honours for the leads, each scoring some brilliant shots at times while at others they were erratic. If anything, Whyte was a shade the better of the two and often left his partner a promising position. Later when the Craigenower C. C. pair recovered their early disadvantage, Landolt had his opponent completely outplayed and rendered invaluable help to Coates, whose task was made the easier.

Brilliant bowling was played by both skips but Coates was the more consistent. He played good bowls throughout the eighteen heads and although he was outplayed at the start it was not because he was sending down bad bowls; it was simply because Cullen was playing outstandingly brilliant.

Cullen was able to draw shots which gave the Dock combination the count on several heads and it was his high standard of bowling which made it possible for them to take a commanding lead.

CULLEN FALLS AWAY

From the middle of the game the Kowloon Dock skip began to fall away like his partner and it was then that Coates was seen to better advantage. He was drawing shot after shot and was able to improve upon heads built up by Landolt.

If the standard of the first two or three heads had been maintained throughout the match, the game would have been by far the best played in the championship but in between some very good heads there was some bad bowling in comparison.

Whyte and Cullen particularly the latter, played some very good bowls on the first head although Landolt and Coates were never far wide of their objective. It was due to a brilliant shot by Cullen that the two Dock men were able to score two.

On the third head, after they had conceded a single on the second, Whyte and Cullen jumped into a strong lead with a four. Both skips sent down some clever bowls after the leads had been responsible for some good work. Cullen never wanted a delivery and was lying two when Coates, in attempting to take out second shot, to draw the first shot, cut the jack into a cluster (Continued on Page 9.)

LAWN BOWLS CONTESTS

SINGLES MATCHES TO-DAY

The match is being played on the Taikoo R. C. green and should prove the attraction of the afternoon.

The Pairs match between the Indian R. C. pair, M. Y. Adal and A. R. Dallah, and P. Cullen and J. J. Whyte, was not played yesterday but has been fixed for this afternoon on the Craigenower C. C. green.

The full programme for to-day is as follows:

FOOTBALLERS TRANSFER

Players Change Clubs In Close Season

Drake, the Arsenal centre-forward, had to withdraw from the England XI which played Holland in Amsterdam on May 18. W. G. Richardson (West Bromwich Albion) took his place.

Mr. George Allison, Arsenal manager, stated that Drake as the result of injuries suffered in the match against Derby County the previous Saturday showed symptoms which may develop into hernia. He entered the Royal Northern Hospital for observation.

T. J. Lynch, the 23-year-old goalkeeper of Yeovil and Pelters, who did so well in the F.A. Cup ties for the Somerset club, has been signed by Brentford.

Derby County secured the transfer from Leicester City of John L.

EVERYTHING READY

London, June 4.
At Epsom everything is in readiness for the Derby. The going is perfect, and there is more herbage than ever before on the course.

The tip chalked on the pump at Epsom "village" (it is actually a fair sized town), and which is followed by thousands of race-goers each year is First Son.

To the question, "why did the Aga Khan call his two colts Bahram and Hairan, Persian experts declare that the meaning of the former is, "Dazzler to the Eyes," which is considered most appropriate. The latter means "Don't Know Where to Go," which is likely to prove inappropriate with the champion jockey, Gordon Richards, riding. —Reuter.

PICTURE OF A GREAT HORSE

BROWN JACK IN ACADEMY

BEST PAINTING BY ARTIST

No horse in recent times has won the affection and admiration of the general public, as well as of the regular racing public, as Brown Jack, writes the Observer's Special Correspondent. The hero of half a dozen Alexandra Palace races, as well as of many another great race, he has had a whole book written about him and he had a plaque placed outside the entrance to the Royal Enclosure at Ascot. And now he has been painted by Mr. A. J. Munnings, R.A., and the picture is one of the most popular at this year's Royal Academy. And with all that Brown Jack remains the most modest of individuals.

Mr. Munnings has painted many horses before, but he has never painted one more like the subject. There have been times when the expert has not been pleased with Mr. Munnings' pictures of horses, not because they were not beautiful to look upon, and without doubt great pictures merely as pictures, but because they were not really like the horse. There was notably his famous picture of Humourist, the winner of a Derby soon after the War. It was a picture which gave every pleasure to the spectator, but it was not really like Humourist. It was a glorified Humourist, an ideal of the horse but not really the horse himself. It was much too grand to be Humourist, who, in spite of his ability as a racehorse, was much smaller than the artist had made him. It was as if some human subject had been made even greater the artist had given to him attributes which he did not possess.

PORTRAITURE AT ITS BEST

This picture of Brown Jack is the best painting of a horse that I have ever seen by Mr. Munnings. It really is Brown Jack. His intelligent head, his fine shoulders, and his powerful quarters are reproduced to perfection. Many a critic of the horse has complained that his forelegs were far from ideal. He certainly stands over there as if he should have done, but there has never been a great horse who was back at the knees. Yet those forelegs of Brown Jack never gave him any trouble, nor did they give his great trainers any trouble. They carried him the longest races that any run in this country. Mr. Munnings has painted them exactly as they were and are. And last but not least, he has got that lazy, sleepy look about the horse. Like so many great horses, Brown Jack was lazy when he had to do more than he had to do. He would come and then he would race at the proper time and then do no more than was actually necessary to win. How many times has he gone to the front and then there have been anxious moments for his friends when some other horse would come after him and seem likely to catch him. They never caught Brown Jack, for when they got too close to him he would hurry just a little more and then go past the winning post with his ears pricked, at most, one believed, laughing at the pursuer.

Frost and Reed, the picture experts and fine-art publishers of 10, Clare-street, Bristol, are now to publish a colour facsimile of this picture of Brown Jack. Signed artist's proofs of this reproduction will be issued shortly. The edition will be strictly limited, stamped by the Fine Art Trade Guild, and published at six guineas each. An edition of unsigned colour prints will be ready by Christmas.

NO PLAY ON THE SECOND DAY

London, June 4.
The first of the two cricket fixtures between the touring South African side and Lancashire, the county champions, was ruined by rain at Manchester to-day and, as a result, the match had to be left drawn.

The tourists held the advantage at the close of play yesterday when they had scored 268 runs and had dismissed Lancashire for 128. In their second innings the tourists had made 142 for six wickets when stumps were drawn for the day.

In the first innings of the South African tour, Lancashire's nearest approach to a fast bowler, took six of the wickets for 79 runs.

There was no play whatever to-day. Rain also interfered in other matches, two of which had to be left without a definite decision.

Middlesex were given first innings points against Gloucestershire at Lord's where the hosts scored, but a total of 143 runs. Parker took six of the wickets for 66 runs. Gloucestershire replied with a score Wyatt contributed 98. When Notts were dismissed for 155 (Hollies taking eight for 67), Warwickshire made 155 for six wickets.

Cambridge University entertained the Army to a match and were beaten by eight wickets. The Undergraduates compiled totals of 284 and 167 while the Army replied with scores of 329 and 113 for two wickets. —Reuter.

The decisive defeat of Ambers was a great disappointment to the boxer and his connections. Ambers had been offered £7,000 to meet Gustave Humery in Europe if he won. Canzoneri, who first won the world light-weight title from Al Singer in 1930, was almost delirious with excitement. After successfully withstanding two challenges from Kid Berg, he surrendered his title to Barney Ross in June, 1933.

FIRST MASTERS' GOLF MEET

HORTON SMITH'S FEAT

A short pitch with a masher-niblick enabled Horton Smith to win the first Masters' Tournament at Augusta a year ago. The Missourian edged out Craig Wood by one stroke with 284. "I could not reach the green with a spoon with my second on the 500-yard 17th," explains Smith. "The green, of the punch bowl type, is invisible from the fairway, which is uphill all the way. The fairway doglegs to the left out about 450 yards.

"My second was close enough so that a masher-niblick was all that was required. I pitched on 12 feet from the cup and rammed the putt down for a birdie four, which was what I needed to win.

"On the pitch with the masher-niblick, I took a half swing, and cocked the wrists but half. With a straight left arm I swung toward the hole. Little wrist action took place as the ball was struck.

£60,000 FOR BAER

IF WEMBLEY STADIUM FIGHT COMES OFF

London, May 11.

In discussing the Baer-Schmeling fight, proposed for Wembley Stadium on August 17 Herr Walter Rothenburg said yesterday that he had received a British Boxing Board of Control permit. The Board, however, have issued a statement to the effect that no communication had yet been addressed to the promoter.

Here are the statements issued—

Herr Rothenburg: "Subject to my obtaining a Home Office permit—and I expect to do so in a few days—Baer and Schmeling will meet in the open-air at Wembley Stadium for the world's heavy-weight championship on August 17. I have obtained the necessary permit from the British Boxing Board of Control, and intend going forward with my organisation immediately."

The Stewards of the British Boxing Board of Control have made no decision whatever, and have not in any way communicated with Mr. Rothenburg regarding the staging of a Baer-Schmeling contest at Wembley.

The Ministry of Labour and not the Home Office is the Department which issues all permits for foreign boxers to appear in British rings, and so far no application has been received from Herr Rothenburg. It may be that the promoter, under a common misapprehension, has sent his application to the Home Office, and the Ministry of Labour may hear from him in due course.

Charles F. Donmall, the secretary of the Board of Control, has been in communication with Arthur J. Elvin, general manager of the Wembley Stadium. Mr. Elvin said that he was quite prepared to lease the stadium to Herr Rothenburg for an open-air fight, but he wished to stress the fact that neither he nor his organisation would be in any way financially interested in the promotion of a Baer-Schmeling contest.

Everything, therefore, hinges upon the issue of a Ministry of Labour permit and upon the sanction of the Board of Control.

The money involved in the projected match is about £90,000. "Baer," said Herr Rothenburg, "will receive $300,000 (about £60,000) to be paid as follows:—$30,000 to be deposited immediately with a New York bank; $135,000 four weeks before the fight; and the balance of $135,000 ten days before the fight."

Schmeling will receive a percentage of the gate. He is not greatly concerned with the financial side of the fight. All he wants is a chance to regain the world title.

The last occasion upon which a world's heavy-weight championship was staged in this country was in 1907, when Tommy Burns beat Gunner Moir at the National Sporting Club over ten rounds.

LEAD REDUCED
Two twos gave Whyte and Cullen the lead 10-1 on the fifth head. The sixth head saw the Craigengower pair recover brilliantly and score five. The Taikoo Dock player was completely beaten by Landolt and the Craigengower representatives were lying four when Cullen drey third shot with his last wood, which, however, Coates dislodged and chalked up their count of five.

However, Whyte and Cullen again jumped into a commanding lead and at the end of the ninth head were 17-6. Again Whyte was outplayed by Landolt on the tenth head on which the Craigengower players scored a three. Cullen, on this head, had the fourth shot and if it had been taken out Landolt and Coates would have scored six. Coates tried to dislodge the shot with his two woods but without success.

From the thirteenth head, the Craigengower C. C. players held the upper hand and a four to them reduced the deficit. It was necessary for Coates to take out Cullen's first shot and then draw a fourth before they secured their count of four.

A two, single and a three made the score 20-19 after Whyte and Cullen had scored a single. Landolt and Coates registered a two to make the scores 21-21 on the eighteenth head, at which point the match was abandoned owing to darkness.

SEÑORITA LIZANA AGAIN

REACHES SEMI- FINAL

TOURNAMENT AT HURLINGHAM

London, May 11.

The eight players who competed for places in the semi-final round of the women's singles at Hurlingham played for the most part pertinacious and painstaking, rather than brilliant, lawn tennis, but there was a considerable amount of interest attaching to all the four encounters. The one that naturally claimed most attention was that in which the Chilean girl, Senorita Lizana, got the better in two close sets of Mrs. W. F. Freeman, who not so long ago was Miss Nonweiler, and is a player of considerable ability.

She has a laudable ambition to hit the ball hard, which, in these days when there is so much pawky play, is to be accounted to her for righteousness; but although she frequently outdove the Senorita, her errors were too frequent, especially when a net reached its critical stage. The Chilean girl, on the other hand, was hitting nearly as hard and almost always with better control.

The first-set score mounted evenly up to 5-5 and then after Mrs. Freeman had been within two points of 6-4, the Senorita won Mrs.

NEW RIFLE ASSOCIATION

REVIVAL OF BISLEY TRADITION

The Hongkong Rifle Association was duly inaugurated last night when a large body of rifle shooting enthusiasts attended a meeting in the S. C. M. Post Building, and gave their approval to the general proposals for the running of the Association drawn up by Major D. H. Steers, O.B.E., R.E.

Major Steers said: I have asked you to come here this evening to explain to you my proposals, in some detail, for the formation of a Hongkong Rifle Association. I venture to hope that when you have given them your consideration, you will find yourselves able to support them, at least on general lines, though I realise that, in matters of detail, certain amount of readjustment may be necessary.

The proposed Association will, I venture to hope, be found to be of some value to the Volunteer Defence Corps, and under no circumstances whatsoever is it proposed or intended that membership of it shall be open to anyone, who, in the normal course of events, is eligible for membership of the Volunteers but who has failed to take advantage of that privilege.

Absence Causes Concern I should explain that just before I left England last autumn, I was approached by members of the Council of the National Rifle Association, who expressed concern at the continued absence from the Bisley shooting of teams representing this Colony, and I was promised the whole-hearted support and assistance of the Council towards putting Hongkong, as a Colony, on the rifle-shooting map once again. It may not be out of place to remark that a few years ago, when as a member of the Singapore team I had the privilege of shooting against Shanghai and Hongkong the trophy was won by your Colony, and I well recollect being told over and over again, that Hongkong was the rifleman's Mecca of the Far East.

Let me now explain my proposals in detail. I suggest that a Hongkong Rifle Association be formed at this meeting to-night, having for its objects, the encouragement of rifle and revolver shooting throughout the Colony, and the selection of teams to represent the Colony at the annual Meeting of the National Rifle Association at Bisley and in the Inter-Port and other events, in which the Colony, as such, may compete.

Membership Terms

I next suggest that membership should be on the following lines: (a) All existing Rifle Clubs shall be eligible to affiliate to the Association, and in return for the annual affiliation fee, shall receive a certain number of free individual memberships.

(b) Individual membership shall be granted to members of the Services, past members of the Services, Volunteers at present serving, past members of the Volunteer Force, either here or in some other part of the Empire, who have attained military efficiency for at least two consecutive years, present members of the Police, Police Reservists, ex-Reservists who are in possession of the Police Reserve Silver Badge and to those, who, being employed on Government or Municipal Marine Service, would be retained on such service in case of emergency. Honorary membership shall be granted to such persons of distinction, who, in the opinion of the Council, have rendered signal service to the cause of rifle-shooting or the Rifle Association.

(c) Individual membership shall be of two kinds, annual and life, and I propose that any individual, providing he possesses the necessary eligibility, as already described, who contributes towards the funds of the Association a certain minimum amount, to be specified by the Council, shall be elected a Life member. Should he not be eligible for membership, and should a firm, or other organisation, contribute a similar amount, then either shall be eligible to nominate to honorary membership, any person eligible to join the Association.

Service to Support

As regards the Patron of the Association, I suggest that His Excellency the Governor shall be asked to accept this position and that His Excellency the General Officer Commanding the British Troops in China, the Commodore in Charge, Hongkong, the Officer Commanding the Royal Air Force Base, Hongkong, the Commandant of the Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps and the Commanding Officer, The H.K. Naval Volunteer Force, and the Honourable the Inspector-General of the Hongkong Police Force shall each be invited to become Vice-Patrons, ex-officio.

I next propose that the business and affairs of the Association shall be vested in, and managed by, a Council, consisting of: a President, not more than three Vice-Presidents, an Honorary Secretary, an Honorary Treasurer and one representative each from the Royal Navy, Army, Royal Air Force, Volunteers, and Police, together with one representative from each of the affiliated Rifle Clubs, plus two representatives to look after the interests of the individual members. I would here emphasise that most of the shooting will be carried out under Bisley conditions, i.e. with the use of the aperture sight and sling, although certain events will be arranged for those who wish to use the rifles "as issued," or the revolver.

The speaker said he had been a competitor at over 20 "Bisley" Meetings, and from his long experience of Rifle Associations he knew that a year book, a pavilion, a blazer and badge were necessary adjuncts.

Major Steers continued: I suggest that we hold our first dinner in about six weeks' time, to be precise on the evening of Saturday, July 20, when, at Bisley, at three o'clock on that afternoon, the final stage of the blue ribbon of the rifle-shooting world will be shot for.

Needless to say, I refer to the final stage of His Majesty the King's Prize, and I suggest that we, as an Association, approach the local broadcasting authorities with the request that the Empire broadcast of this event shall be relayed, if possible, from the local station so that we may hear ourselves, the conditions prevailing as regards the weather, the score obtained and the name of the new King's Prize man.

Inter-Port Shoot

I would also suggest that the Council should explore every avenue in order to see whether it could not be possible for us, occupying as we do a midway position between the other two ports concerned, to invite the teams from these places to visit Hongkong, and to shoot the competition, shoulder-to-shoulder on one of the ranges at Bisley during our suggested Bisley Meeting.

In conclusion, I have the authority of the Staff at Command Headquarters to tell you that if this Association is formed to-night on the lines which I have suggested, every possible assistance will be gladly afforded us. Officers of support have also been received from a number of units of the Army stationed here, the Royal Navy and Royal Marines, the Royal Air Force, the Volunteers and the Police. You will have already perceived that, under the proposed constitution there is not the slightest chance of the present activities of any of the existing Rifle Clubs being interfered with in any possible way, and I am anxious that the fact should be emphasised that the objects of the Association, as well as its interests, are such that we shall be only too anxious to increase the number of these affiliated Clubs and at all times to afford them all the support and assistance which lies in our power.

On a further point and I have finished. I cannot but feel that the facilities which we hope to possess very shortly for the encouragement of revolver shooting may, to an increasing extent as time goes on, be found to be of real use to officers of the Merchant Navy, whose ships are liable to attacks of piracy. At any rate, we can but wait and see whether our attempt to help in this direction are required and appreciated, but I am sure that you are all in agreement with me when I suggest that we should at least do what we can to help in this direction.

In reply to questions it was stated that shooting would probably start within the next three months time when the necessary 1914-rifles could be got out from England. The question of the eligibility of the Legion of Frontiersmen and other points would be discussed by the Council and placed before the first general meeting, about three weeks time.

Col. Marrow formally proposed the formation of the Association which was seconded and carried unanimously.

SHAI GARRISON

SHARP QUERIES ABOUT BARRACKS

London, June 4. In the house of Commons Mr. A. C. Moreing, (C), (Preston), asked whether in considering plans for the rebuilding of the army barracks in Hongkong the War Office would consider the necessity of providing accommodation in Shanghai less unsuitable than the present huts for the habitation of British troops.

The Financial Secretary to the War Office, (Mr. Douglas Hacking) referred the honourable member to his answer of February 12, this year when he said that the quartering of troops in Shanghai is not a government arrangement. He had no reason to suppose that the quarters now provided were below the reasonable standard for temporary use. He understood that most of the troops of other countries was of a more permanent character. If our troops were not remaining in Shanghai permanently, and if the temporary accommodation was good, then it might be considered a waste of public money to provide barracks made of brick.

Mr. Moreing requested an assurance as to how long British troops in Shanghai would be likely to remain in those most unsatisfactory conditions, and referred to the fine and adequate foreign barracks.

Mr. Hacking said that he was unable to state how long it might be necessary to keep the troops in the huts, which, he emphasised, were only temporary accommodation.—Reuter.

EXTRALITY CASE

EXTRADITION OF MYSTERY MAN ORDERED

Shanghai, June 4. A remarkable extra-Territoriality tangle has arisen as a result of a decision of the Kiangsu High Court to-day, ordering the handing over to the Chinese authorities of Hupoh, Joseph Walden, who claims French nationality but does not possess a passport and is not registered with the French Consul General. The decision over-rides the formal application of the French Consul General to postpone extradition until Walden's claim can be substantiated.

Meanwhile the Shanghai Municipal Police are holding Walden, who was arrested several weeks ago on suspicion of military espionage, and refused steadfastly to reveal his name and nationality until last Saturday.—Reuter.

It was announced at yesterday's monthly meeting of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce that Messrs. Li Yau-tsun and Ko Ho-ling had resigned from the Chamber's Executive Committee and that Messrs. Peter Sin and Ip Lan-chuen had been appointed to take their place. Mr. Ip Lan-chuen was formerly for many years the Chamber's popular General Secretary.

The following appointments in addition to those already mentioned were made: Major D. H. Steers, O.B.E., R.E., Hon. Secretary; Mr. T. G. Stokes, Hon. Treasurer; Individual Members Representatives, Mr. C. A. Grimes and Mr. D. W. Waterton. It was decided to write to all affiliated Rifle Clubs, the Royal Navy, the Royal Air Force, the Police Force, Hongkong Volunteer Corps, the Hongkong Naval Volunteer Force and others to elect representatives to the Council. Col. Harrison was elected to represent the Army.

It was decided that the first function of the Association could be the annual dinner mentioned by Major Steers and the Meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to this officer for all the trouble he had taken to think out and produce the scheme which was laid before the meeting last night.

ASSESSMENT RATES

CHINESE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING

The continued decline in land and house property prices, and the prevailing trade depression, which have led to thousands of shops and residences being unoccupied, were given as the primary reasons for a suggestion by Mr. Chiu Chao-fan to the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, at its monthly meeting yesterday afternoon. He submitted that it was high time for the Government to reduce the assessment and water rates.

Mr. Chiu stated in a letter to the Chamber that when the Government increased the assessment rate on the last occasion the authorities pointed out that the measure was necessitated by the high cost of administrative expenditure brought about by the payment of salaries to civil servants on a sterling basis. Mr. Chiu pointed out that the Hongkong dollar had appreciated and it was no longer necessary for the Government to incur the high rate of former payments to sterling salaried officials. With the decline of property prices there is at the moment a serious drop in the number of property and land transactions, which have directly affected the Governments' stamp duties and other revenues. Mr. Chiu's proposal that the Chamber should take up the matter with the authorities, asking for a reduction of the assessment rates, was unanimously approved. His suggestion for lower water rates was amended by a counter-suggestion from Mr. Fung Ki-cheuk proposing that the Government should cut down the water rates in accordance with the schedule recommended recently by the local Economic Commission in its final report. This proposal, which was seconded by Mr. Cheng Chin-pang, was also passed.

Lower Rents Suggested

The Secretary, Mr. Chan Ping-au, also read a letter from some members of the Chinese community which suggested that in asking for a reduction of assessment rates the property owners should also take into consideration the interests of the poor tenants, who want lower rents.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, who was supported by the Secretary and the new Hon. Treasurer, Mr. Chan Kam-po.

Regarding the Chamber's recent recommendation for a cut in the charges for local utilities, the Chairman announced that the matter was still under consideration by the Sub-Committee.

Take heart, fair lady. There is such a face powder, called MARVELOUS. This powder clings as you've always wanted powder to cling—and never thought it could. Marvelous, indeed, is a different kind of powder, a different blend, developed by the Richard Hudnut laboratories after years of searching for a new, longer-clinging powder.

The Marvelous blend contains a substance entirely new to face powder—with a remarkable power to cling to your skin. In a sense, it becomes part of your own skin texture.

Marvelous Face Powder, therefore, never looks powdery on your skin. It looks like a new, more freshly-tinted, softer complexion of your own! And think of it—this flattering effect remains from four to six hours.

"FUNERAL" OF BAYERN

GERMAN BATTLESHIP REFLOATED

GREAT FEAT OF SALVAGE

Another great salvage feat was successfully concluded when the ex-German battleship Bayern, one of the two most powerful ships which were scuttled with the rest of the surrendered fleet in June of 1919, was brought safely into the lock at Rosyth Dockyard after being towed upside-down from Scapa Flow.

As the salvaged battleship yielded slowly to the persuasion of the tugs on the last few miles up the Forth to Rosyth Dockyard, she was the central figure of an impressive spectacle.

Seen from the Forth Bridge, it was indeed a remarkable sight. Shortly before 11 a.m. the fog which enveloped the river lifted slightly, and revealed two indistinct shapes in the distance.

Fully five minutes elapsed before the Bayern and her convoy of tugs could be discerned from the island of Inchcolm. Gradually they moved forward, and as they neared the bridge the sun appeared in final salute.

It was then that the great battleship, in spite of her inverted position, recaptured some of her old splendour. The scene was reminiscent of a Royal procession. A large Dutch tug, the Zwartee Zee, led the procession, and alongside the glistening, deep-rusted hull two smaller tugs, also with blue-banded funnels, were in attendance. The salvage ship of Metal Industries (Ltd.), the Metinda, was another attendant.

A couple of aeroplanes swooped from the azure sky and dipped in salute. A small pleasure steamer, two motor boats, and a number of rowing boats moved up and down the route.

When the Forth Bridge was reached—about noon—the aeroplanes departed, and the Bayern passed under and entered her last mile to the accompaniment of the screaming of circling seagulls.

A large crowd had gathered at the Metal Industries' lock at Rosyth Dockyard, where the last stage of the difficult journey was successfully accomplished.

When the leading tug gave up her rope and was replaced by a tiny pilot, the Bayern remained almost stationary for 20 minutes. Patient and skilful manoeuvring ultimately told, however, and stubbornly the huge hull entered the lock.

Amongst those who watched operations with much interest were the Countess of Elgin and her family; Dr. J. D. Pollock, chairman of Metal Industries (Ltd.); Mr. R. W. McCrone, managing director; Mr. Wilkinson, manager at Rosyth; and Captain Robertson, R.N., H.M.S. Greenwich, Rosyth Dockyard.

Mr. T. McKenzie, salvage manager of Metal Industries (Ltd.), was on board the Bayern.

SAFE VOYAGE

A representative of Metal Industries (Ltd.) stated that the work had been completed with every satisfaction, and the voyage, while demanding great care and patience, had been uneventful.

The Bayern will remain in the lock to-day, and will later be towed to the dry dock, where, for two or three weeks, divers will be engaged in placing chocks under her to distribute her weight evenly over the dock floor before the water is pumped out and the Bayern left ready for the work of breaking her up.

ROSE TRIMMING

With a simple dress of pearly blue crepe goes a smart little bolero coatee of heavy linen lace in the natural linen colour. The accompanying blue straw hat is trimmed with hand-made linen roses.

A representative of The Scotsman, who had boarded the derelict off Inchcolm, writes: "I found plenty of room to stretch my legs during the next few hours. The ship's bottom was very flat, and as she is the heaviest of all the ships that have been towed to Rosyth—her beam is just under 100 feet—there was quite a lot of space on board."

In one deckhouse was housed the air-compressing plant to keep her afloat, the ship being divided into eleven air-tight compartments, from seven of which there jutted out the airlocks, small compared with the 100-foot high airlocks that were in her when she was being salvaged from the sea bed. In another deckhouse were the quarters where her crew were housed during the passage south, when there were fifteen people on board, including Mr. T. McKenzie, manager of Metal Industries at Lyness, and formerly manager there for Cox & Danks.

CHARACTERISTIC SOUND

Walking about the ship one detected the characteristic sound that comes from these upturned derelicts—a faint hiss. It was quite easy to trace individual sources of the hiss to where minute escapes of air were coming from between the plates, and in one or two places pools of water bubbled as though the water were boiling.

LIVED TOO LONG

CENTENARIANS ARE MOSTLY POOR

Paris, May 27.
One hundred years is too old to live economically.

A survey of the 66 known centenarians of France shows that two-thirds of them are extremely poor. Two of them are in old peoples' homes, the poorest, an Algerian named Sidel, who is 103, lives in a miserable hut in the Parisian Zone—the squatters' belt about Paris—and most of the others are dependent upon the bounty of relatives.

There are some who still have resources of their own, however like Mme. Pierre of Beauvoisine, who, at the age of 100, has just renewed her lease for nine years, in spite of the offer of her proprietor to let her continue in possession without charge until her death. She was afraid he might die first, though he is a mere 80 years, and that his heirs would be less generous.

Fifty-two of France's centenarians live in the country and only fourteen in cities.

If centenarians retain little in the way of this world's goods, they frequently gain its honours. Rare is the centenarian who does not belong to the Legion of Honour. If that decoration can be gained in no other way, one has only to pass the hundred mark, for a grateful government to discover some service worthy of commemoration that has been performed by living one hundred years. If no notable achievement during the Franco-Prussian war can be discovered—for which two centenarians, a man and a woman, were recently honoured—the red ribbon is awarded for being the oldest school teacher in France, or for having, during three-quarters of a century, faithfully delivered letters to one's neighbours. Both of these distinctions have recently been considered sufficient reason for awarding the distinction of the rank of Knight of the Legion of Honour.

But there is a kernel of bitterness to the honour. The man or woman who is made a Knight for having lived 100 years can hardly expect, after a wait of the usual number of years, to win the dignity of Officer—except, perhaps, posthumously.—United Press.

keels, the ship's bottom had been scraped free from barnacles. Her three propellers and double rudders were still in place, and walking along the keel at the stern one could see the slight buckling caused when her bow came up during the salvage operations, leaving the weight on the stern.

Seven capital ships of the former German High Sea Fleet have now been brought from Orkney to Rosyth to be broken up by Metal Industries (Ltd.), and of these, six, including the Bayern, came upside down, the only exception being the great battleship Hindenburg, which was refloated on an even keel.

For eight years the firm of Cox & Danks conducted the salvage operations. Then Metal Industries took over the whole concern and began work with one of the biggest undertakings of all. It was a big undertaking not only because the Bayern is a big ship—her tonnage of about 28,000 is practically equal to that of the Hindenburg—but because the Bayern lay in deeper water than the other ships which had been raised. Last September, however, Metal Industries succeeded in raising her from a depth of 20 fathoms, and thereby won their spurs in salvage. It only remained to shepherd her to the dry dock at Rosyth, there to be broken up, and then to pass on to be remelted, piece by piece, and converted into razor blades or whatever useful articles it is usual to make out of useless old ships.

"STYLISH" REMEDIES RUN TO DEATH

PROFESSION WORSE THAN THE PUBLIC

By JOHN MACLAREN

Doctors differ. That is notorious. But they are seldom frank with the public about their differences.

So I was surprised to meet a medical man who was entirely outspoken about the contradictions and inconsistencies of his professional brethren. He was an ex-naval surgeon, and the Navy is said to be the Silent Service. But there was nothing of tight-tipped reticence about this gentleman.

He expatiated upon medical fads with positive gusto, his manner (like his brick-red complexion) suggesting the quarter-deck rather than the consulting room.

"That's how the profession makes a fool of itself," he exclaimed, waving his cigar. "Science discovers some new method or some new piece of knowledge in physics or bio-chemistry. It has a certain real value within limits but soon medical men are falling over each other to proclaim it as a sovereign remedy for dozens of maladies."

"Take the ultra-violet rays vogue of a few years ago," he went on. "Artificial sunshine was prescribed as the great tonic and infallible specific for nearly everything. Then the General Medical Council issued a report, stating that so far as the treatment of local conditions was concerned you might just as well use a poultice, and as for the tonic value, a course of cod liver oil would be equally effective."

The doctor's eyes twinkled, and I ventured to remark that the craze now seemed to be for sun-bathing in the open air.

"Yes, and have you noticed," he demanded, "that all the medical wisecracks now warn people of the dire dangers of over-exposure from biliousness to apoplexy—though the same authorities a few years ago were preaching the unlimited benefits of the sun-cure and telling us to get as much of it as ever we could. The old story—running a novel remedy to death—and the profession are worse than the public."

THE ROUGHAGE FADDISTS

A pensive look came into the doctor's eye and he gazed for a moment at the glowing tip of his cigar.

"Perhaps you remember before the war the fashionable treatment for digestive troubles was Bulgarian sour milk. It was proclaimed to work wonders. You never hear of it now. The craze to-day is for pasteurised milk, and even there half the profession is on one side and half on the other, and the most eminent living surgeon has declared that the only safe method is to boil every drop of milk that comes into your house."

"What about," I inquired, "the campaign of the famous physician who tells the nation that the whole gospel of health is to be found in wholesome bread, uncooked green vegetables and raw fruit?"

"Boe in his bonnet!" was the emphatic reply. "This doctrine of rough feeding sets people consuming the husks that the swine did eat. And what happens? Those with delicate digestions get worse disorders than ever and seek some other medical adviser, who tells them that by eating bulky, coarse food they are simply poisoning themselves. The funny thing is," he added, "that the roughage theorists are usually the very people who condemn our good, old Scotch breakfast porridge and say it causes crickets and decay of the teeth."

"Then there are the no-breakfast fanatics, and the experts who tell you that to be healthy you should have only one meal a day—like your dog. They can all claim some medical sponsor or other. Now, some crazy dietician in America—a doctor, too—has laid down the law that you must not eat protein and carbohydrates at the same time. You must eat your egg at one meal but your toast at the next; your meat at dinner but your potato at supper. Can you beat it for perverse nonsense?"

I mentioned that I had met one fashionable London consultant who held not only white bread to be a poison but white sugar also, and banned salt utterly from the table. "Quite believe it Harley Street has as many cranks as any freak back-to-nature colony," commented my interlocutor. "My profession cannot agree on even the simplest advice about daily living. Take exercise. One general practitioner tells his middle-aged, sedentary patient to take up golf. Another will warn him that, after sitting at a desk all the week, to indulge in strenuous exercise like golf at the week-end will do him more harm than good."

"Then there is the doctor who gives his patient a bottle whether he needs it or not. And the other type who on the slightest provocation sends him to a specialist, who will pocket three guineas for telling him there is really nothing the matter. However, since 75 per cent. of patients simply want to have their fears set at rest, they are getting value for their money."

"So it's pretty much a matter of faith healing, in both cases?" I suggested.

As his mother, Mrs. Louard Wells, was suing the second wife of Carveth Wells, explorer, for $50,000 for alienation of her husband's affections, John Carveth Wells (above), son of the explorer, was selling matches in London streets to make a living for his wife, his baby and himself. The suit, brought in Bridgeport, Connecticut, was decided in favour of the elder Wells' first wife. She was awarded $5,000. Young Wells, shown in the above picture at his trade, is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of England.

"MENAGERIE" IN HOME

PEER'S DAUGHTER RESTRAINED

NEIGHBOURS KEPT AWAKE

An application on behalf of neighbours of the Hon. Mrs. Alice McLaren Morrison, of Kennal Warren, Chislehurst, Kent, a daughter of the late Lord Pirbright, was made in the Chancery Division, London, by Mr. H. B. Vaisey, K.C., to restrain an alleged nuisance concerning a number of monkeys, cats, dogs, and birds kept by Mrs. Morrison.

The application was granted by Mr. Justice Bennett, who heard by an injunction, with costs, in terms of the motion.

Mr. Vaisey said he had a motion to restrain the defendant from keeping or suffering to be kept a number of dogs, birds, cats, and monkeys.

Mr. Justice Bennett—Why do you want to restrain birds?

Mr. Vaisey—If you have ever lived next to a cockatoo (laughter).

Mr. Justice Bennett—I was thinking of thrushes and nightingales, which you have to listen to whether you like it or not.

Mr. Vaisey said the action was to restrain the defendant from causing, by keeping the animals, any nuisance to the complainants. The complainant was Mr. Harold Molins, the owner of Mulbarton Court, Chislehurst. Some mitigation of the nuisance had been made since the motion was originally before them on April 30 and stood over until to-day for the removal of certain large dogs, which had been removed from the premises.

LARGE DOGS REMOVED

The removal of the large dogs had not got rid of the nuisance, for there was a number of small dogs which had been causing a considerable nuisance.

Mr. Justice Bennett—Is the

Despite the apparently strained relations existing between Germany and other European countries, England and the Reich have recommended the exchange of officers for training at the two military schools which are exponents of both types of warfare. For the first time in many years, a German officer, Lieut. von Wick, has become attached to a regiment at Aldershot for a military course. Here Lieutenant von Wick is pictured walking into the officer's mess of the 2nd Battalion, Grenadier Guards.

nuisance caused by the noise or smell?

Mr. Vaisey—The first complaint is of the noise, and the second is of the offensive smell.

He added that they were residential houses of good character. His Lordship would see that the defendant had chosen to treat her house as a menagerie on a large scale and one which, he was entitled to say by reason of previous Police Court proceedings, was very ill-conducted as such.

Mr. Vaisey, submitting the affidavit of Mr. Molins, also produced photographs of the house, with certain rooms in the house which he said were "stocked with cages."

In reply to Mr. Justice Bennett, he said there were about 100 dogs. He added that the defendant had brought to her house more dogs, a goat, a guinea pig, mice, cats, and dogs, which kept Mr. Molins awake at night.

Mr. Wynn Parry said some of the dogs had been taken away and had not been brought back.

"CENSUS" OF ANIMALS

Mr. Vaisey went on to say that when an inspector visited the premises he found 70 adult dogs, 11 puppies, 27 cats, 16 monkeys, 100 birds, one rat, and one goat.

"The rat is denied by the defendant, and we are prepared to admit that," said Mr. Vaisey.

Mr. Wynn Parry read an affidavit sworn by Mrs. Morrison which stated that Mrs. Morrison was one of the first to import Japanese spaniels into this country.

She never kept animals for profit, but only for a hobby. She took Kennal Warren in order to reduce expense of keeping two premises as she had been used to do.

Mr. Justice Bennett—The only point is whether there is a noise and smell. You cannot keep 50 dogs in a place like this without any noise.

63 DOGS INSIDE

Mr. Parry said his client said there was no possible cause for complaint on the score of cleanliness.

DEPOSITORS' RUSH

SAVINGS SOCIETY AT SHAI PAYING OUT

Shanghai, June 4. At three o'clock this afternoon a run on the International Savings Society commenced.

There were approximately 300 depositors in orderly lines and under police supervision withdrawing their money until 3.30 p.m.

Mr. M. Speelman the Head of the Society told the United Press that there were ample funds to meet the demands and that he planned to remain open to-night if the run continues.—United Press.

Mr. Justice Bennett—How many dogs has she now?

Mr. Parry—There are three dogs outside and 53 inside.

"We cannot allow this sort of thing to go on," said Mr. Justice Bennett. "Most people keep dogs and cats, and most of them are no nuisance to their neighbours. She should never have taken that number of animals in that sort of place."

Mr. Parry reminded him that there were eight acres. "I ask you for help."

Mr. Justice Bennett—You will not get help from me. The law is all you will get.

"I propose to put her at her peril. She has to behave herself, in a similar way as other people, in similar circumstances would have to."

Mr. Parry—That, in fact, must mean a removal of the animals.

Mr. Justice Bennett agreed. "I am only concerned," he said, "in seeing that her neighbours live in reasonable comfort. This sort of thing is wholly unreasonable. I am finding against her on the evidence."

Mr. Parry asked for time to prove his evidence, but Mr. Justice Bennett said he would grant an injunction with costs in the terms of the notice of motion.

This beautiful bowl, named the Thunderbird Bowl from its design, was one of the gifts of His Majesty from Canadian subjects. It was made in Victoria, British Columbia, and was given by the people of that province to the King. It is made from the design of a legendary Indian figure. The bird rests on two solid silver whales, and is made of gold and silver. The donors filled the bowl with gold nuggets to be donated to the King's cancer fund.

STABILISATION

As the Bousillon Government appeared favourably disposed to international consultation on currency stabilisation, there were hopes that the advent of this Administration might lead to the early convening of a world conference on the subject. That hope, however, has lessened now that the Government has been compelled to resign. To the layman, it is a somewhat amazing fact that whilst there is general agreement as to the desirability of some definite step being taken in an endeavour to work out a stabilisation agreement, no one country will take upon itself the responsibility of starting the ball rolling. Almost every utterance by world statesmen, bankers and economists which one encounters nowadays includes some reference to the harmful effects on trade of fluctuating currencies, and there is apparent a unanimity of viewpoint that an agreement on international stabilisation, coupled with the removal of other barriers to commerce, would have widespread beneficial consequences. Yet when the call for action is sounded, no Government responds with a willingness to make the first move. Quite recently, Mr. Morgenthau, the United States Secretary of the Treasury, intimated in a broadcast on America's monetary policy, that the nations of the world should know that when they are ready to seek exchange stabilisation, Washington would be no obstacle. This was interpreted as a feeler for the purpose of ascertaining world reaction to the idea of a conference on the subject. A few days later, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, frankly admitted the difficulties caused by fluctuating exchanges, but added that a return to the gold standard could only be made possible by a satisfactory settlement among the great nations of the world. This also was interpreted as an indication that Britain would be willing to confer on the subject. But not many days afterwards, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald emphatically refused, on behalf of the British Government, to take the first step in the matter, adding that "we have been trying to get the initiative taken, but up to now

NOTES OF THE DAY

BRITISH ARMS INQUIRY

The first public meeting of the Royal Commission investigating the British arms industry was held recently. The small attendance probably was not a true gauge of public interest in the questions to be discussed. Certainly if the testimony before this tribunal—the first in British history to weigh the future of the private arms trade—is at all comparable to that which was brought out in the United States by the Senate Munitions Committee, the hearings will not lack public attention. It is easy to exaggerate the part that munitions makers play in bringing on war. But that their operations have helped to prolong wars and to frustrate efforts to establish peace, and that they have often beclouded the outlook for international understanding will be difficult to disprove. The evidence on these points is already well established. The British investigation will surprise no one very much if it adds to this evidence—as the American inquiry has—details and aspects so startling as to make the public demand for reform adamant. Yet it is not in the best interests of peace to imagine that all munitions makers are scoundrels, and that to take their profits away from them will end the possibility of war. The Royal Commission's inquiry aims at ascertaining facts, not arousing emotions.

ABUSE OF PRINCIPLE

In Bronx Special Sessions, says the N.Y. World Telegram, two officials of a non-A. F. of L. organisation, calling itself the United Retail Food Clerks' Union, were given six months' workhouse sentences on charges of coercion and conspiracy involved in what Assistant Attorney-General Bernard Blensstock, of the Anti-Racket Bureau, describes as a racket to "shake down" grocery store owners. This follows recent World Telegram articles by its staff writer, Frederick Wolfman revealing the extent to which racketeer organising methods, disclosed in the case of two clothing clerks' unions, threaten other retail trades. The practice of "unionising" employees by putting the screws on their employers is characteristic of most of these rackets. The store owner must "sign" or be picketed. The American Federation of Labour suspended the charters of the two clothing clerks unions, which were A. F. of L. affiliates. Against mushroom groups of "organisers" who have no A. F. of L. connections the speediest protection for retailers and public can come from the Anti-Racket Bureau. Assistant Attorney-General Blensstock should be encouraged to go on and better the score. Organised labour itself is a chief sufferer from racketeers who pervert its principles and its purpose. Besides cleaning its own house, it should support law authorities in stopping the spread of all fake "organising" methods that tend to discredit it.

TO-DAY'S MOTORING HINT

REVERSING

Many novice drivers experience difficulty in reversing the car in a confined space. The best way of carrying out this operation is to keep the eyes fixed on the off-side of the car only, provided it is known that the opening is sufficiently wide for the car to pass through. The car should be driven as close to the observed side as possible; the other side can be left to itself. When reversing, and this applies in all cases, it is generally better to control the speed of the car by means of the hand throttle and not by the accelerator pedal. If this is done the right foot can be kept hovering over the brake pedal for instant use.

we have not been very successful." And so it goes on; all are agreed as to the desirability of calling a conference, but none will make the first forward move. The failure of past conferences is no doubt a factor in the situation, resulting in a disinclination on the part of most countries to saddle themselves with another possible deadlock. Yet it is passing strange that national pride should stand in the way of a square facing up to the realities. In view of the continued world depression, it might reasonably be expected that the boot would be on the other foot—that no nation would allow itself to suffer the reproach of not doing everything possible in an endeavour to straighten out the situation.

THIS FETISH OF PSYCHOLOGY

By AGIS

In the Edinburgh Evening Despatch

HOW many ministers have recently been infected by the craze for psychology? There has been nothing like it in modern times. Once the average minister studied theology; now he studies psychology. Where they used to examine, question, and believe in the Spirit of God, now many ministers investigate and pursue the ways and workings of the spirit of man. Recently I met a minister who showed me a list of books he had got together. There were over fifty, and each was concerned with the study of psychology. He was determined to read them to a bitter end. Already within a fortnight he had preached two sermons directly bearing on the subject, and one wondered how many more his congregations would be deluged with before he was satisfied. No one would seek to question the value and importance of psychological study. For the minister it is specially useful. It is as important and as far-reaching as the new knowledge of evolution was to our forefathers a generation or two ago. But just as evolution proved a serious menace to Christianity then because it was given a place in thought and in faith out of all proportion to its value, so the study of and belief in psychology is threatening the spontaneous faith and belief of this more modern day.

There is a deep and abiding truth in psychology, only we must determine the truth about it and keep it in its proper place. Where it aids the spirit of God or of man it is of value; where it is a substitute for real religious experiences it threatens the very heart and inspiration of Christianity.

For one thing, surely it is a denial of all religious truth and experience to be told that the wave of protest against the evils and injustices of society is merely the expression of a protest due to a parent fixation; that a guilty conscience is a morbid conflict or a fetish for purity, a repression or an inhibition; that to worry about morality or conduct is merely a subconscious complex being given outlet? In other words, it indicates if it does not actually say that all the religious people, the moral reformers, and the seekers after truth are such because of some psychological abnormality. It limits the Spirit of God if it does not altogether deny His place in conscience, regeneration, and salvation.

Then again, it makes conscious and awkward, hesitating and doubtful many actions, impulses, and urges to which a man was wont to give natural, spontaneous, and happy expression. It leads to over-introspection which may even become morbid. It suspects all feeling or at least makes us consider whether we have not some ulterior or primary motive for the emotion which we might otherwise accept merely as the expression of our joy or sorrow.

I remember some years ago meeting a very young minister on the eve of a call. He was wondering what were his impulses and motives in accepting it. Instead of looking on it as a call of God, he was wondering whether he was refusing to face up to anything or fleeing from some subconscious fear by wanting a change at all? His study of psychology had so worked into his soul that it had stirred up the very doubts that the average man answers spontaneously and happily. It is probably this morbid side of psychology which is its greatest menace. Where a patient is mentally ill it is of great use. It may help many a minister to overcome his nervousness; it will guide him in treating the neurotic fears, quarrels, and temptations of the various members of his congregation. But just as it is morbid for a healthy man to probe into all the diseases and cures of medicine until sometimes he convinces himself he is a martyr to them all, so it is dangerous for the normal individual to fester his mind with all the abnormal repressions, complexes, and inhibitions of mankind. Psychology is for the specialist and those who must be treated. Of course, just as we are all the better for observing the laws of health, and the more we grasp the general laws the more healthy we are likely to be, there are broad psychological principles familiar to our mental and psychic happiness. It is one of the claims of religion that it can give these to mankind. Not only is a too-close study of psychology a lot of mud-stirring, but it may land the incautious or weak-willed or ignorant seeker in the mud.

When one considers the modern craze for psychology one wonders what the end is to be. Certainly the laws of society will not be religious laws, for these will come under question and be subservient to the laws of Nature. And religion is Nature plus the revelation of God in Jesus Christ. It will probably mean that instead of spontaneity of action due to idealism or faith, men will be governed by psychological principles of the text-book, and so man may become a psychological automaton whose every impulse and urge is to be examined before he acts. The Spirit of God will be connoted in terms of instinct, repression, or inhibition. Religion, it will be believed, is an emotional expression of a complex or a fear or a protest. Thus psychology, which sets out to explain much (and rightly so), may become an end in itself—which is the denial of everything beyond man's reactions to the natural impulses within and around him. It may be claimed that by seeking to explain the Spirit of God we in no way take away from His reality. But it must be an explanation and not a substitute. Just as many people suppose that evolution is a substitute for creation, so the real danger is that many may fall into the error of supposing that psychological experiences are a beginning and an end in themselves. Thus the religious value of prayer and worship, penitence and forgiveness, service and sacrifice may be seriously threatened and their reality denied beyond the human working of the spirit of man. It is the claim of religion that it has reality in faith, safeguard in conduct, sublimation and satisfaction in its worship and service, and that the sincere Christian may live a happy, normal, and God-ordained life in Jesus Christ. Above all, we believe in the inspiration and guidance of God through His Holy Spirit. In religion the normal man has all the benefits of psychology without its dangers.

The Very Idea!

IN LIGHTER VEIN

In a town school an infant class reading lesson was in progress. The word "stille" occurred, and the teacher inquired, "What is a stille?"

ARMS AND THE BISHOP

The Duke of Wellington was very blunt and hated fussiness of any kind.

When a question arose as to whether the military salute should be given to a certain bishop in Canada, he replied that his soldiers were to pay attention to nothing about a bishop except his sermons.

HIGH GEAR

Traffic Policeman—"Now, miss, what gear were you in at the time of the accident?"

Demure Miss—"Oh, I had on a black beret, brown shoes, and a tweed sports dress."

TIT FOR TAT

That poverty does not necessarily deprive a person of a sense of humour is suggested by a recent incident which occurred in a Glasgow street.

A beggar followed an elderly, goity, limping gentleman, pleading for assistance.

On his pleas being refused with much irritability, the mendicant said, "Jings, ah wish yer wert wis as tender as yer feet!"

BAGS!

Some characteristic bench witticisms of Lord Darling are preserved by ex-Chief Detective-Inspector Ernest Nicholls, in "Crime Within the Square Mile" published by John Long.

"Or wind-bags," gently interposed his lordship. Whereupon the speech came to a speedy end.

REALLY DEAD

Two Cockneys were watching a funeral.

"Whose funeral is it, Bill?"

"Why it's —, the famous actor."

"Good heavens! Is he dead?"

"Well, of course he's dead. Why, do you think he's having a rehearsal?"

MORE HOWLERS

A chameleon is the driver of the Ship of the Desert.

Blancmange is a distemper that troubles cats.

Rhino is a beast of such value that his name is used as a nickname for cash.

"Good morning," an old crony addressed a friend whom he met on the roadside; "are ye all well?"

"Oh, aye, thank ye kindly for speering! We're a' weel, only the wife's deid!"

HE SWORE

Policeman (to pedestrian injured by motor):—"You didn't get his number, but could you swear to the man?"

Pedestrian—"I did. But I don't think he heard me!"

DOLLAR CHANGES TWICE

DECLINES AND THEN RECOVERS

The Hongkong dollar opened a farthing down this morning, the official rate being 2s. 4d. Later in the morning, the quotation again reached the 2s. 4 1/4d. mark.

On opening, the business rate was 2s. 4 3/4d. sellers and 2s. 4 1/2d. buyers, but later the respective rates were 2s. 4 5/8d. and 2s. 4 3/4d. The market is quite steady.

Silver prices in London declined a penny yesterday, the fall being chiefly due to Chinese speculative selling. India-China and America bought at the fall, and the market closed steady.

"She's even got me thinking about vacation time."

RISINGDEATH LIST NOW
OVER 56,000SPLENDID
RESCUES

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messengers Ordinance, 1931. Received, May 5, 7 a.m.)

Quetta, June 4.
The death-roll in the earthquake for Quetta and adjacent districts is now estimated at the appalling total of 56,000, according to official figures here.

Within two hours of the collapse of the city, the military had rescued from the ruins over 10,000 people alive.

High tribute is paid in all quarters to the magnificent work of the British, particularly women, who, disregarding their own safety, assumed the role of nurses.

Seven thousand survivors in Quetta are now housed in tents on the Racecourse. Fortunately, food and water supplies are adequate.— Reuter Special.

FURTHER SHOCKS POSSIBLE

London, June 4.
An India Office communication states that although there may be some chance of further shocks in Quetta, this may not cause undue alarm, as all precautions have been taken to minimise the danger to survivors. These, both civil and military, are being accommodated in the open.

All British survivors are devoting themselves completely to relief work and their efforts are reinforced by a constant stream of assistance from outside. The greater part of the Quetta cantonment was either intact or only slightly damaged, and this applies to the Staff College, both military hospitals and the barracks of British and Indian troops and their families.

The injured under treatment in the military hospital are: British, 79 men; 73 women; and three children; and Indian, 3,250.—

LIFE-SAVING

LOCAL CLASSES RECOMMENCE

Local life-saving classes have recommenced and a good season is predicted.

Thirty students of St. Stephen's College, Stanley, are undergoing instruction from Mr. J. A. Gaunt, while classes for the European and Indian contingents of the Hongkong Police Force are also in progress.

Royal who this morning underwent an operation for ophthalmic gastro, is so far satisfactory, according to a bulletin issued this afternoon.—British Wireless.

A bridge, whilst and mah-jong afternoon in aid of the Shiekung opera is being held this afternoon in St. Patrick's Hall, Garden Road,

NEW YORK
MARKETU.S. DOLLAR EASY AGAINST POUND

New York, June 4.
Messrs. Handy and Harmon quoted silver at 72½ cents per ounce here to-day.

On the foreign exchange market the dollar was easy against sterling and firm against the franc.

On the New York Cotton Exchange prices were upward by forty to forty-five points. The market was inspired by reports that the Government intends to strengthen the loyalty of the A.A.A. Also there were continued unfavourable weather reports and a decline in the Chinese crop of forty per cent. The heavy buying included that by traders who are making replacements of their last week's sales when they feared that the abandonment of the N.R.A. might include the A.A.A.
Short-sellers operators have been squeezed on the knowledge that the Government intends to accept delivery of its contracts.

Silk prices were three and a half to five points higher on commission house buying and hedge lifting by Japanese accounts.
There was also good business in spot deliveries. There was a noticeable absence of selling pressure.—United Press.

THREE WOMEN IN FIGHTONE ADMITTED TO HOSPITAL

A fight between three Chinese women—a widow, a married woman and her daughter—in Cross Street, Wanchai district, yesterday, resulted in the widow being sent to hospital suffering from a head injury.

The incident was mentioned before Mr. Schofield in the Central Police court this morning when Wong Fong, 42, married woman, and her daughter, Chan Sam-mui, 18, together with Wong Shun, 52, widow, who is in hospital, were charged with fighting.

Detective Sergeant Fitches stated that the widow was an unlicensed vegetable hawker and yesterday Wong Fong placed two baskets of haberdashery in front of her stall. An argument started and led to a fight. Wong Fong's daughter joined in and is alleged to have struck the widow on the head with a clog.

The case was remanded for 48 hours. Wong Fong and Chan Sammui being on bail of $5 each.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

HATE SHUTS HER SOUL WHEN DOVE-EYED MERCY PLEADS.—Charles Sprague.

A police reward of $100 is offered for the arrest and conviction of men who committed two armed robberies at Ping Keng Village, Sheung Shui district, New Territories, on May 11 last.

That he had returned to collect clothing at 17 Des Voeux Road West was the excuse offered by Tse Pak 32, when he appeared before Mr.
Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with returning from banishment before his period of ten years' had expired.
Defendant was remanded for 24 hours to get his effects from the address mentioned. Another returned banishee, Tse Kwai, 30, of the Singapore stated he came back to Hongkong on receipt of a letter from his mother stating she was ill. He was also remanded till to-morrow for enquiries.

Pleading guilty before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning to a charge of assaulting a 71-year-old widow at 76 Ng-Tsin-Wai Road yesterday, Ki Choi, 28, unemployed, was sentenced to two months' hard labour. Inspector Chester-Woods, prosecuting, stated that defendant is complainant's daughter-in-law's brother, and had for some time been going to complainant's house for money. Yesterday he went there again but was refused. He became angry and struck the woman with his flat. When defendant was sentenced complainant remarked that when he was released there would be more trouble, but the Magistrate declared:
"That's all right; we will banish him."

BOUSSON GOVERN-MENT RESIGNS
IN ERROR

Bousson read the ministerial declaration he was greeted with general cheering.

At the first interruption, M.
Bousson snapped "That's enough," in the pert manner by which he, as President of the Chamber, has dominated the House for seven years. This retort was so unexpected that the Chamber roared with laughter, members shouting "He's forgotten where he is."
The Premier later delighted the deputies when he replied to another interruption: "You think because I have descended one story (the rostrum is below the Presidential chair) that I have come down in life. You are wrong."

The debate was concluded after a violent attack on the part of Communist radicals. After the vote the session was suspended in order to allow the Finance Commission to report on the Government's Plenary Powers Bill. Contrary to expectation, the Finance Commission approved the Bill by the narrow margin of only one vote.

LAVAL SELECTED

It is learned now that M. Lebrun intends to insist that M. Pierre Laval accept the Premier's post and form a ministry at once, today, meeting Parliament on Thursday.—Reuter.

The United Press adds that M.
Laval has been summoned to the Presidential Palace to be requested to form a Government.

EXTRALITY CASE

EXTRADITION OF MYSTERY MAN ORDERED

Shanghai, June 4.
A remarkable extra-Territorial tangle has arisen as a result of a decision of the Kiangsu High Court to-day, ordering the handing over to the Chinese authorities of Hupeh, Joseph Walden, who claims French nationality, but does not possess a passport and is not registered with the French Consul General.
The decision over-rides the formal application of the French Consul General to postpone extradition until Walden's claim can be substantiated.

Meanwhile the Shanghai Municipal Police are holding Walden, who was arrested several weeks ago on suspicion of military espionage, and refused steady-fastly to reveal his name and nationality until last Saturday.—

KILLS A HUNDRED

Mexico City, June 4.
Over a hundred were drowned or killed at San Pedro and Actopan, twenty miles from here, as the result of a cloudburst flooding the Actopan River and causing torrents.

Many victims were trapped in the Actopan Church where they were celebrating a religious festival.—Reuter.

INDIA BILL'S PROGRESSSIR SAMUEL HOARE SPEAKS

London, June 4.
A further stage in the Parliamentary passage of the Government of India Bill was reached to-day, when in the House of Commons, the Secretary for India, Sir Samuel Hoare, moved its third reading, and congratulated the House on discussing, without the guillotine or closure, every feature of an incredibly intricate Bill of 400 pages.

He said a significant fact which emerged from the long debates was that the main structure of the Joint Select Committee report remained intact. The three great principles—an All-India Federation, provincial autonomy and responsibility with safeguard—had not been shaken or damaged.
No new principle had been introduced into the Bill.

"I defend this Bill," said Sir Samuel, "not so much because no-one can produce an alternative scheme, but because I believe it to be good in itself. I believe that it is founded upon a majestic conception that should inspire all of us who believe in the traditional policy of the British Commonwealth of nations."

It might now be hoped that the Bill would pass in the comparatively near future, and that when it was placed on the Statute Book there would be no protracted delay in bringing it into operation. He appealed to critics, both in Britain and India, when once the Bill had become law, to join in a common effort to make the new Constitution succeed.—

Help Your Children

Get The Full Joy of Life

By Keeping Them Well

The healthy child is a happy child, full of fun all day, and ready for a sound night's sleep when bed-time comes. If your child is not like this it is evidence enough that something is wrong in its little inside.

Most of childhood's ailments originate in the stomach; sweets are so alluring, the good things of the table are so tempting, servants are so prone to ignore instructions, and give way to the demands of the little master or mistress at meal-times.

It was because he knew all this from long experience that an eminent British child-specialist devised the formula of Baby's Own Tablets, now so famed throughout the world as a specific for childhood's common ills.

Parents everywhere who once try Baby's Own Tablets for their little ones give them a permanent place in the medicine cabinet, ready for immediate use whenever the children need a laxative to cleanse the intestinal tract, or are troubled with indigestion, wind, colic. Teething pains and feverishness are quickly allayed, colds and croup are eased, worms are expelled by this same remedy. With surprising speed weak, ailing, backward children gain weight, strength and spirit when Baby's Own Tablets are made their medicine. And they like their pleasant-taste.

Chemists everywhere sell Baby's Own Tablets.

RAIN SPOILS CRICKET FIXTURE AT MANCHESTER

CRAIGENGOWER BOWLERS SAVE PAIRS TIE

DRAW LEVEL AFTER BEING DOWN 10-1 AND THEN 19-9

(By "Sagax")

There were two distinct phases in the Open Pairs lawn bowls championship on the Civil Service C. C. Green yesterday afternoon when J. S. Landolt and A. E. Coates who were outplayed and outgeneralized during the opening stages, brought off a magnificent recovery and were on level terms with their opponents at 21-21 on the eighteenth head, at which point the match was abandoned. The game will be continued this afternoon, starting at 6 p.m.

The standard of bowls fluctuated but it was always high and all four players showed brilliant patches at different stages of the game. The two Dock players early revealed promising form and at the end of the ninth head had a commanding lead, but in the latter parts the Craigenower combination more than held their own and had it been possible for the match to have been concluded yesterday it is more than likely that they would have won.

For the first half of the game Whyte and Landolt shared the honours for the leads, each scoring some brilliant shots at times while at others they were erratic. If anything, Whyte was a shade the better of the two and often left his partner a promising position. Later when the Craigenower C. C. pair recovered their early disadvantage, Landolt had his opponent completely outplayed and rendered invaluable help to Coates, whose task was made the easier.

Brilliant bowling was played by both skips but Coates was the more consistent. He played good bowls throughout the eighteen heads and although he was outplayed at the start it was not because he was sending down bad bowls; it was simply because Cullen was playing outstandingly brilliant.

Cullen was able to draw shots which gave the Dock combination the count on several heads and it was his high standard of bowling which made it possible for them to take a commanding lead.

CULLEN FALLS AWAY

From the middle of the game the Kowloon Dock skip began to fall away like his partner and it was then that Coates was seen to better advantage. He was drawing shot after shot and was able to improve upon heads built up by Landolt.

If the standard of the first two or three heads had been maintained throughout the match, the game would have been by far the best played in the championship but in between some very good heads there was some bad bowling in comparison.

Whyte and Cullen particularly the latter, played some very good bowls on the first head although Landolt and Coates were never far wide of their objective. It was due to a brilliant shot by Cullen that the two Dock men were able to score two.

On the third head, after they had conceded a single on the second, Whyte and Cullen jumped into a strong lead with a four. Both skips sent down some clever bowls after the leads had been responsible for some good work. Cullen never wasted a delivery and was lying two when Coates, in attempting to take out second shot, to draw the first shot, put the jack into a cluster.

Making a graceful arch, Lord Lindsay's big gray, Jane Grey, is taking the brook perfectly at Towcester, England, adding not a whit to the enjoyment of the rider in the foreground who took a ducking when Mrs. M. Margesson's Littlejohn slipped into the water. The race was in the novice class at the Grafton Hunt Trials, which produced some spectacular steeplechasing.

BROWN JACK IN ACADEMY

BEST PAINTING BY ARTIST

No horse in recent times has won the affection and admiration of the general public, as well as of the regular racing public, as Brown Jack, writes the Observer's Special Correspondent. The hero of half a dozen Alexander Dicks, at Aintree as well as of many another great race, he has had a whole book written about him and he had a plaque placed outside the entrance to the Royal Enclosure at Ascot. And now he has been painted by Mr. A. J. Munings, R.A., and the picture is one of the most popular at this year's Royal Academy. And with all that Brown Jack remains the most modest of individuals.

Mr. Munings has painted many horses before, but he has never painted one more like the subject. There have been times when the expert has been not pleased with Mr. Munings's pictures of horses, not because they were not beautiful to look upon, and without doubt great pictures merely as pictures, but because they were not really like the horse. There was notably his famous picture of Hummer, the winner of a Derby soon after the War. It was a picture which gave every pleasure to the spectator, but it was not really like Hummer. It was a glorified Hummer, an ideal of the horse but not really the horse himself. It was much too grand to be Hummer, who, in spite of his ability as a racehorse, was much smaller than the artist had made him. It was as if some human subject was in many ways great, but in order to make him even greater the artist had given to him attributes which he did not possess.

PORTRAITURE AT ITS BEST

This picture of Brown Jack is the best painting of a horse that I have ever seen by Mr. Munings. It really is Brown Jack. His intelligent head, his fine shoulders, and his powerful quarters are reproduced to perfection. Many a critic of the horse has complained that his forelegs were far from ideal. He certainly stands over more than he should have done, but there has never been a great horse who was back at the knees. Yet these forelegs of Brown Jack never gave him any trouble, nor did they give his great trainers any trouble. They carried him to success continually and over the longest races that any man in this country. Mr. Munings has painted them exactly as they were and are. And last but not least, he has got that lazy, sleepy look about the horse. Like so many great horses, Brown Jack was lazy in that he would never do more than he had to do. He would come and win his race at the proper time and then do no more than was actually necessary to win. How many times has he gone to the front and then there have been some other horse's friends come after him and seem likely to catch him. They never caught Brown Jack, for when they got too close to him he would hurry just a little more and then go by, leaving his friends with his ears flicked, almost, one believed, laughing at the pursuer.

Ernest and Reed, the picture experts and fine-art publishers, of 10, Clare-street, Bristol, are now to publish a colour facsimile of this picture of Brown Jack. Signed artist's proofs of this reproduction will be issued shortly. The edition will be strictly limited, stamped by the Fine Art Trade Guild, and published at guineas each. An edition of unsigned colour prints will be ready by Christmas.

GREAT SHOTS IN GOLF DESCRIBED

HORTON SMITH'S FEAT

A short pitch with a mashie-niblick enabled Horton Smith to win the first Masters' Tournament at Augusta a year ago. The Missourian edged out Craig Wood by one stroke with 284.

"I could not reach the green with a spoon with my second on the 500-yard 17th," explains Horton Smith. "The green, of the punch bowl type, is invisible from the fairway, which is uphill all the way. The fairway doglegs to the left out about 450 yards. "My second was close enough so that a mashie-niblick was all that was required. I pitched on 12 feet from the cup and rammed the putt down for a birdie four, which was what I needed to win. "On the pitch with the mashie-niblick, I took a half swing, and cocked the wrists but half. With a straight left arm I swung toward the hole. Little wrist action took place as the ball was struck."

TOURISTS AND LANCASHIRE

NO PLAY ON THE SECOND DAY

London, June 4. The first of the two cricket fixtures between the touring South African side and Lancashire, the county champions, was ruined by rain at Manchester to-day and, as a result the match had to be left drawn.

The tourists held the advantage at the close of play yesterday when they had scored 268 runs and had dismissed Lancashire for 128. In their second innings the tourists had made 142 for six wickets when stumps were drawn for the day.

In the first innings of the South Africans, Lancashire's nearest approach to a fast bowler, took six of the wickets for 79 runs.

Middlesex were given first innings against Gloucestershire at Lord's where the hosts scored but a total of 113 runs. Parker took six of the wickets for 66 runs. Gloucestershire replied with a score

SURREY UNFORTUNATE
Essex likewise took points for a lead on first innings in their match against Surrey at the Oval, where they scored 221 runs in reply to a total of 175. Nichols took six Surrey wickets for 57 runs. Surrey declared their second innings closed at 225 for eight but stumps were drawn with Essex having 92 runs on the board and one wicket in hand.

Warwickshire secured a victory by four wickets against Nottinghamshire at Birmingham. The visitors scored 231 runs, Paine taking eight for 121 while Warwickshire responded with 300, of which R. E. S. Wyatt contributed 98. When Notts were dismissed for 215 (Hollies taking eight for 67), Warwickshire made 153 for six wickets.

Cambridge University entertained the Army to a match and were beaten by eight wickets. The undergraduates compiled totals of 281 and 157 while the Army replied with scores of 329 and 113 for two wickets.—Reuter.

The decisive defeat of Ambers was a great disappointment to the boxer and his connections. Ambers had been offered £7,000 to meet Gustave Hamery in Europe if he won. Canzoneri, who first won the world light-weight title from Al Singer in 1930, was almost delirious with excitement. After successfully withstanding two challenges from Kid Berg, he surrendered his title to Harney Ross in June, 1933.

RESULTS AT A GLANCE

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

Middlesex (143 and 195 for 8 wickets, dec.) beat Gloucestershire (136 and 103 for 4 wickets) on first innings.

Essex (221 and 92 for 9 wickets, dec.) beat Surrey (175 and 225 for 8 wickets, dec.) on first innings.

Warwickshire (300 and 153 for 6 wickets, dec.) beat Nottinghamshire (234 and 215 by four wickets).

FRIENDLY MATCHES

The Army (329 and 113 for 2 wickets, dec.) beat Cambridge University (234 and 215) by four wickets.

Lancashire (128) drew with the South Africans (268 and 142 for 6 wickets).

CHAMPION ONCE AGAIN

TONY CANZONERI WINS

TROUTS LOU AMBERS

Tony Canzoneri, boxing's "Gem of Consistency," the man who twice frustrated Kid Berg's ambition of winning the Light-Weight Championship of the World for Great Britain, once more became world champion by severely punishing Lou Ambers, the "Hurricane" in a fifteen-rounds contest at Madison-square Garden.

Showing all his old brilliant form, and utilising his splendid ringcraft to the best advantage, Canzoneri landed almost at will with stinging lefts and rights. Such was the ferocity of his attack that he reduced the "Hurricane" to a mere zephyr. Canzoneri simply toyed with Ambers throughout. The latter was always game and ready to fight, but his punches lacked the necessary sting to hurt Canzoneri.

Canzoneri set up a relentless attack from the start. Ambers, instead of fighting back, made the mistake of adopting defensive tactics. This suited Canzoneri, who punched away in Berg-like fashion and piled up an almost unassailable lead of points to win the first nine rounds. It was not until he began to take an "easy" that Canzoneri lost points in the tenth round. He slackened up considerably, and allowed Ambers to get in some good punches.

Ambers, however, was lucky to avoid being knocked out—in the earlier rounds. He was saved by the third when he was twice sent to the canvas for counts of two from terrific left hooks. He went down again from a right hook, but did not take a count.

Getting his second wind after taking it easy in the tenth, Canzoneri resumed the offensive in the eleventh, and was superior in every department. Ambers made a spirited rally in the next two rounds, and landing more often, took the honours. It was obvious, however, that Canzoneri held himself back in the last two rounds, probably not desiring to punish his opponent unnecessarily.

Canzoneri has always been the idol of New York fans, and the ovation he received from the 17,433 people who paid a total of $4,557 dollars (about £8,900), was one of the greatest seen or heard at the Garden for many years.

FOOTBALLERS TRANSFER

Players Change Clubs In Close Season

Drake, the Arsenal centre-forward, had to withdraw from the England XI, which played Holland in Amsterdam on May 18. W. G. Richardson (West Bromwich Albion) took his place.

Mr. George Allison, Arsenal manager, stated that Drake as the result of injuries suffered in the match against Derby County the previous Saturday showed symptoms which may develop into hernia. He entered the Royal Northern Hospital for observation.

T. J. Lynch, the 23-year-old goalkeeper of Yeovil and Petters, who did so well in the F.A. Cup ties for the Somerset club, has been signed by Brentford.

Derby County secured the transfer from Leicester City of John L.

The tip chalked on the pump at Epsom "village" (it is actually a fair-sized town), and which is followed by thousands of race-goers each year is First Son.

The question, "why did the Aga Khan call his two colts Bahram and Hairan, Persian experts declare that the meaning of the former is "Dazzler to the Eye," which is considered most appropriate. The latter means "Don't Know Where to Go," which is likely to prove inappropriate with the champion jockey, Gordon Richards, riding, Reuter.

Summers, outside-right, who made eleven League appearances for Leicester last season, Summers joined Leicester from Tunbridge Wells in April last year.

White, the Newport County inside-right, who formerly played for Aldershot and Cardiff City, has been signed by Bristol City.

Charlie Jones, the former Arsenal and Welsh international half-back, who resigned the managership of Notts County, has accepted the position of manager-coach to Crutwell Athletic, the Spartan League club who next year are to compete in the Eastern Counties League.

£60,000 FOR BAER

IF WEMBLEY STADIUM FIGHT COMES OFF

QUESTION OF PERMIT

London, May 11. In discussing the Baer-Schmeling fight, proposed for Wembley Stadium on August 17 Herr Walter Rothenburg said yesterday that he had received a British Boxing Board of Control permit. The Board, however, have issued a statement to the effect that no communication had yet been addressed to the promoter.

Here are the statements issued:—
Herr Rothenburg:—"Subject to my obtaining a Home Office permit—and I expect to do so in a few days—Baer and Schmeling will meet in the open-air at Wembley Stadium for the world's heavy-weight championship on August 17. I have obtained the necessary permit from the British Boxing Board of Control, and intend going forward with my organisation immediately."

British Boxing Board of Control—"The Stewards of the British Boxing Board of Control have made no decision whatever, and have not in any way communicated with Mr. Rothenburg regarding the staging of a Baer-Schmeling contest at Wembley."

The Ministry of Labour and not the Home Office is the Department which issues all permits for foreign boxers to appear in British rings, and so far no application has been received from Herr Rothenburg. It may be that the promoter, under a common misapprehension, has sent his application to the Home Office, and the Ministry of Labour may hear from him in due course.

Charles F. Donmall, the secretary of the Board of Control, has been in communication with Arthur J. Elvin, general manager of the Wembley Stadium. Mr. Elvin said that he was quite prepared to lease the stadium to Herr Rothenburg for an open-air fight, but he wished to stress the fact that neither he nor his organisation would be in any way financially interested in the promotion of a Baer-Schmeling contest.

Everything, therefore, hinges upon the issue of a Ministry of Labour permit and upon the sanction of the Board of Control.

The money involved in the projected match is about £90,000, "Baer," said Herr Rothenburg, "will receive $300,000 (about £60,000) to be paid as follows:—$30,000 to be deposited immediately with a New York bank; $135,000 four weeks before the fight; and the balance of $135,000 ten days before the fight."

Schmeling will receive a percentage of the gate. He is not greatly concerned with the financial side of the fight. All he wants is a chance to regain the world title.

The last occasion upon which a world's heavy-weight championship was staged in this country was in 1907, when Tommy Burns beat Gunner Moir at the National Sporting Club over ten rounds.

LEAD REDUCED
Two twos gave Whyte and Cullen the lead 10-1 on the fifth head. The sixth head saw the Craignower pair recover brilliantly and score five. The Talkoo Dock player was completely beaten by Landolt and the Craignower representatives were lying four when Cullen drew third shot with his last wood, which, however, Contes dislodged and chalked up their count of five.

However, Whyte and Cullen again jumped into a commanding lead and at the end of the ninth head were 17-6. Again Whyte was outplayed by Landolt on the tenth head on which the Craignower players scored a three. Cullen, on this head, had the fourth shot and if it had been taken out Landolt and Contes would have scored six. Contes tried to dislodge the shot with his two woods but without success.

From the thirteenth head the Craignower C. C. players held the upper hand and a four to them reduced the deficit. It was necessary for Contes to take out Cullen's first shot and then draw a fourth before they secured their count of four.

A two, single and a three made the score 20-19 after Whyte and Cullen had scored a single. Landolt and Contes registered a two to make the scores 21-21 on the eighteenth head, at which point the match was abandoned owing to darkness.

SENORITA LIZANA AGAIN

TOURNAMENT AT HURLINGHAM

London, May 11. The eight players who competed for places in the semi-final round of the women's singles at Hurlingham played for the most part pertinacious and painstaking, rather than brilliant, lawn tennis, but there was a considerable amount of interest attaching to all the four encounters. The one that naturally claimed most attention was that in which the Chilean girl, Senorita Lizana, got the better in two close sets of Mrs. W. F. Freeman, who not so long ago was Miss Nonweiler, and is a player of considerable ability.

She has a laudable ambition to hit the ball hard, which, in these days when there is so much pawky play, is to be accounted to her for righteousness; but although she frequently outdrew the Senorita, her errors were too frequent, especially when a set reached its critical stage. The Chilean girl, on the other hand, was hitting nearly as hard and almost always with better control.

The first-set score mounted evenly up to 6-5 and then, after Mrs. Freeman had been within two points of 6-4, the Senorita won Mrs. Freeman's service for 6-5 and reached 40-0 on her own. But although Mrs. Freeman saved that twelfth game, Chile won the next two without shedding another point. In the second set the invader went well ahead to

SERIAL STORY

The DARK BLOND

by CARLTON KENDRAKE

CHAPTER XXXVI

Millicent stared at the man walking down the corridor, her eyes wide with startled comprehension as she recognized him.

For several seconds she did not realize that the unusual illumination of the corridor made it virtually impossible for him to see her. Only when he paused before the doorway of the apartment she had just left did Millicent fully appreciate that Richard Gentry was coming to the apartment, upon some errand in connection with those stolen books of account.

Gentry paused at the door, started to fit a key into it, then, apparently changing his mind, he raised his right hand, knocked twice, paused, knocked twice more, repeated these two knocks after an interval, and then gave one last knock.

Millicent, watching, saw that he did not wait for an answer but, following the knock, immediately fitted a key to the door and entered the apartment.

It was at that moment that Millicent suddenly realised her predicament. Gentry was undoubtedly going after those books. He would discover that they were missing and it would be but a matter of seconds until he dashed out to the corridor, aware of the theft of the suitcase containing those precious books. Perhaps he would make for the elevator but it was far more likely that, in his haste to descend, he would dash down the corridor toward the stairs.

Millicent snatched up the suitcase and such was her excitement that she was entirely unconscious of its weight as she sped down the stairs, leading to the lower floor when she suddenly realised that she would be trapped between the lobby of the apartment house and the sidewalk, held back by the weight of the suitcase.

It would be impossible for her to walk as much as a block with that heavy weight. There was, of course, a chance that some cruising cab would stop by and pick her up as soon as she gained the sidewalk, but there was a far greater chance that Richard Gentry would overtake her at the curb if he didn't catch her in the lobby.

There was no time to balance the probabilities. She had to think and act fast. A window opened onto the fire escape and she flung the suitcase over the sill down to the steel-barred platform and followed it, almost before the suitcase had thudded to grating.

She had barely gained the platform and adjusted her skirts about her ankles when she heard the sound of feet thudding down the staircase. She turned toward the corridor and saw Richard Gentry dashing past, running rapidly.

He shot past the window and she heard the bang of his feet on the lower stairway as he ran down toward the lobby.

Millicent looked below her and saw an alleyway, shaded and gloomy, piled with garbage cans, boxes, barrels, broken packing cases, and other bits of rubbish. She felt certain that, while perhaps as occasional truck might rumble through the alleyway, there would be but little traffic through it and few pedestrians.

With any sort of reasonable luck, she seemed safe enough for the moment. It was getting out of the building which presented the real difficulty. She dared not return to the third floor, nor did she dare to descend to the lobby. She was trapped between the floor and would have to wait there until one opportunity for escape presented itself.

She turned the suitcase over on its side, used it as a seat, crossed her ankles, tucked her skirt about them, placed her elbows on her knees, and waited.

After some minutes she heard the thud of feet as two men laboriously climbed the stairs. One of them was talking and, while she could not catch what was said, she recognized Dick Gentry's voice, and could tell that he was both angry and frightened.

The pair climbed up the stairs to the third floor. She waited anxiously, but did not hear them return. The shadows lengthened, a coolness filled the air. Millicent felt cramped and weary.

Had the two men remained in the apartment on the third floor or had they returned by way of the elevator? She had no means of knowing, and realised that she never could know without exposing herself to danger.

She picked up the suitcase, pushed it through the window to the corridor, stood listening for a moment but heard nothing except the distant rumble of traffic and the pounding of her own pulse in her ears.

Carrying the suitcase, she descended the stairs. The lobby was deserted. She crossed to the door, tugged it open and her heart gave a wild leap as a cruising cab driver, seeing her struggling with the door and the heavy suitcase, alighted at the curb and flashed her an inquiring glance.

At her nod he slammed on his brakes, jumped across the intervening stretch of sidewalk, picked up the suitcase, and said, "Where to, Miss?" She dared not go back to Jarvis Hap's house. She remembered the name of the cheap hotel where she had spent the night which followed Dringold's murder. She gave the cabby the name of the hotel and added, "In a hurry. Please make it as fast as you can."

The cab lurched into motion and Millicent, flashing a glance back at the apartment house, saw a cabriolet swing around the corner and glide to a stop at the curb.

She saw Bob Caise jump from the car almost before it had come to a stop. Millicent settled back in the cushions, too frightened to look back again, fearful that Bob Caise would see her and start in pursuit.

The cab swung into a main artery of traffic and Millicent, suddenly realising that she was a fugitive from justice, leaned back in the corner of the cab so that her face would be invisible to traffic officers or curious pedestrians.

The cab rounded a corner to the left, pulled in close to the curb. The driver jerked the door open, helped Millicent to the sidewalk, carried her suitcase into the hotel. She rewarded him with a generous tip and met the cynical appraisal of the clerk who stared at her from behind the desk with world-weary eyes.

"Millicent, know the man's type. She stared at him haughtily and said, "Let me see your register, please."

He handed her the book and she looked back through the pages until she found the name under which she had registered and the room number that had been assigned to her. Then she closed the register and said, "What rooms have you vacant, please?"

"What sort of a room would you want?"

"I'll tell you when I see what you have vacant."

"By the day, week, or month?"

"That will depend." Millicent handed her a chart. Millicent saw that the room she wanted was vacant, but she pointed to another room and said, "What's the price on this by the night?"

"A dollar seventy-five."

She frowned, slid her finger down until it rested on the room she wanted.

"This room?" she asked.

"That," he said, "will be $1.50."

"I'll take it," she told him, opened her purse, slid a bill across the counter, wrote in the register, "Miss Millicent Jones," and said, "Will you please have a boy bring up my suitcase?"

He banged the palm of his hand down on a bell and yelled, "Front." A sleepy looking bellboy emerged from an elevator, sized Millicent up with insolent eyes, and picked up her suitcase and the key which the clerk handed him. Millicent looked at her change, followed the bellboy to her room, unlocked a small tip, closed and locked the door and even took the precaution of drawing the shades. Then she went to the place where she had concealed the notebook in which she had written Dringold's dictation. The notebook was still there.

Millicent took the notebook, dropped it into the suitcase and faced herself in the mirror. She now had every bit of valuable evidence in the case in her possession. She had the short-hand notebook which had caused Bob Caise no small concern, the books of account which had been stolen, the note in Bob Caise's handwriting which definitely linked him with the woman in the black ermine coat.

"What a prize I would be," she muttered. "Anyone who captured me now would have every shred of evidence in the case."

Her meditations were interrupted by the ringing of the telephone.

Millicent stared at it with a feeling of panic. The steady, insistent ringing of that telephone bell seemed to indicate that she had been discovered.

Slowly she crossed to it and took the receiver from the hook.

The voice which came over the wire was that of the clerk at the desk.

"Miss Jones," he said, "there's a gentleman here to see you."

"I don't want to see him. I know no one in the city. There's some mistake."

"The gentleman," the clerk said, "gave the bellboy a tip and is on his way up. I'm just letting you know."

Millicent gripped the telephone receiver, wondering what to do. As she wondered, impatient knuckles pounded against the door.

STOLE ANTIQUE FRUIT DISH THIEF SENT TO PRISON

Before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning, Li Wong, 36, of no fixed abode was charged with (a) theft of an antique fruit dish, valued at $150, the property of Kwong Yuk-kwong, single woman, from 77 Calne Road, second floor; and (b) with receiving the same, knowing it to have been stolen. Another man, Lam Hung, 37, unemployed, of 32 Reclamation Street, first floor, was charged with receiving the property knowing it to have been stolen. He denied the charge.

Detective Sergeant Guild, prosecuting, stated that at about 5 p.m. on May 30, the first defendant visited his brother, who was employed at 77 Calne Road, to ask him for money to return to the country. The brother had no money to give him, but invited him to stop for a meal. During the meal, the brother had occasion to leave the room, and the first defendant took the dish off the wall and took it to Yau-mat. Nothing further was heard of the dish until yesterday, when a detective, going his rounds of the pawn-shops, saw the second defendant trying to pawn it. He questioned him, and was told that the dish had been given him to pawn.

Sergeant Guild added that the second defendant told the police that he had obtained the dish from an opium divan in Reclamation Street. The police had only circumstantial evidence to offer against him.

His Worship discharged second defendant. Sentence of three months' hard labour was passed on the first defendant.

SILVER FALLS BUT STEADIES

London, June 4. The Stock Exchange to-day was steady to firm, but business in practically all sections was restricted.

On the commodity markets, rubber improved on Malayan shipments being smaller than had been anticipated. Cotton prices staged a good rally before the close, owing to rumours that President Roosevelt would make some constructive statement tonight.

Silver prices fell a penny on India and China selling, but later partially recovered. Renewed speculative buying caused a rise in copper.

BRITISH FINANCES

LATEST TREASURY RETURNS

London, June 4. Exchequer returns for the current financial year up to June 1 show that the total ordinary revenue, excluding self-balancing items, amounts to £93,661,829, as compared with £93,725,927 at the corresponding date last year. The total expenditure, exclusive of self-balancing items, amounts to £136,587,149. At the corresponding date last year the total was £137,324,681.—British Wireless.

DANZIG BANKS CLOSED

INDEFINITE PERIOD

(Special to "Telegraph")

Danzig, June 4. An indefinite bank holiday has been declared here to-day.

The purpose of this measure is to check the recent extensive withdrawals from the savings banks, which withdrawals have been designed chiefly for the purchase of foreign currency.

The Danzig Senate has proclaimed that all week days henceforth are to be considered as holidays for all banks, savings institutions, stock markets and foreign exchange markets.

Certain exchange institutions will be permitted to remain open but only for the exchange of foreign currencies into gulden.

The payment of wages and urgent financial transactions will be allowed under regulations which will be published on Thursday, June 6.—United Press.

RESULT OF SPECULATION

Danzig, June 4. The Government, which is composed of Nazis, has ordered the closing of all banks for two days.

This action has been taken owing to feverish buying of foreign exchange in consequence of a rumour of further devaluation of the Danzig gulden.—Reuter Special.

BONUS BILL SHELVED

STRATEGICAL MOVE BY SUPPORTERS

Washington, June 4. Congressional supporters of the cash bonus, payment to War veterans have decided to abandon their efforts to secure consideration at this session and instead to concentrate upon a campaign with the people.

They will strive to rouse public opinion to a point which will force enactment of the Patman Bill at the next session of Congress.

RESEARCH SHIP REPORT

ANTARCTIC MARINE LIFE STUDIED

London, June 4. The British Royal research ship Discovery II now lies in St. Katherine's Dock, London, after twenty months of oceanographical research in the Antarctic. The main purpose of the voyage was to study the habits and distribution of whales, and a report has been prepared for the Colonial Office on this subject.

The teeming marine life of the Antarctic was studied and records taken of sea depth. The greatest depth recorded was 7,000 metres, near South Sandwich Island.—British Wireless.

DOGS WITHOUT MUZZLES

EUROPEANS APPEAR IN COURT

R. Ashby, of Messrs. Dodwell & Co., residing at 11 Shouson Hill, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning on two summonses for allowing his two dogs unmuzzled and unleashed in a roadway on May 23.

It was stated that a postman visited the address and was bitten by one of the animals. He reported to the police, and a sergeant was sent up to the house. He found the animals running about loose in the roadway.

Defendant, who stated that the animals were left unleashed and unmuzzled because there had been a burglary at the house a few days previously, was fined $5 and ordered to pay $3 compensation to the postman on one summons, and fined another $5 on the second summons.

Mrs. D. G. MacAvoy, of 502, The Peak, was also summoned before Mr. Macfadyen for allowing her dog abroad unmuzzled and unleashed.

Defendant stated that she was taking the dog out on a leash, when a coolie happened to come along the same way, leading a small dog. Her dog, seeing the smaller dog, struggled away from her and ran up to it. In the resultant mix-up, the coolie alleged that he had been bitten by her animal.

The police stated that there was no actual evidence of the coolie having been bitten, but as he had been given treatment at a hospital for dog-bite, the summons had been taken out against defendant. His Worship cautioned defendant.

LOTTERY TICKET HAUL

WOMAN ADMITS POSSESSION

"It is the biggest haul we have had for a long time," remarked Inspector M. J. Hourihan in the Central Police Court this morning when a married woman, Chan Chung-lan, 22, with a baby in her arms, pleaded guilty before Mr. W. Schofield to the possession of 3,062 pe-pu lottery tickets, valued at $1,025.

Inspector Hourihan said a Chinese detective in Second Street suspected the defendant of having tickets and when searched at the station the tickets were found under her jacket tied to her waist.

Defendant stated that she was promised a few ten-cent pieces for carrying the tickets.

Inspector Hourihan: She has only $2.48 in her possession. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $250, or three months' hard labour, and ordered the destruction of the tickets.

CHINESE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING

The continued decline in land and house property prices, and the prevailing trade depression, which have led to thousands of shops and residences being unoccupied, were given as the primary reasons for a suggestion, by Mr. Chiu Chao-fan, to the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, at its monthly meeting yesterday afternoon. He submitted that it was high time for the Government to reduce the assessment and water rates.

Mr. Chiu stated in a letter to the Chamber that when the Government increased the assessment rate on the last occasion the authorities pointed out that the measure was necessitated by the high cost of administrative expenditure brought about by the payment of salaries to civil servants on a sterling basis. Mr. Chiu pointed out that the Hongkong dollar had appreciated and it was no longer necessary for the Government to incur the high rate of former payments to sterling salaried officials. With the decline of property prices there is at the moment a serious drop in the number of property and land transactions, which have directly affected the Government stamp duties and other revenues. Mr. Chiu's proposal that the Chamber should take up the matter with the authorities, asking for a reduction of the assessment rates, was unanimously approved. His suggestion for lower water rates was amended by a counter suggestion from Mr. Fung, a cheuk proposing that the Government should cut down the water rates in accordance with the schedule recommended recently by the local Economic Commission in its final report. This proposal was seconded by Mr. Che Chin-pang, was also passed.

Lower Rents Suggested

The Secretary, Mr. Chan Piu, also read a letter from members of the Chinese community, which suggested that asking for a reduction of assessment rates the property owners should also take into consideration the interests of the tenants, who want lower rents.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. Wong Kwong-tin, who was supported by the Secretary and now Hon. Treasurer, Mr. C. Kam-po.

Regarding the Chamber's recommendation for a cut in the charges for local utilities, Chairman announced that matter was still under consideration by the Sub-Committee.
